District Attorney's House Robbed

YOUTHFUL THIEF IS ROUTED

Police Baffled at Robbery of Nelson Residence by Pair With Truck
OIL WORKER FIGHTS YOUTHFUL INTRUDER
Jewelry and Pearl Strings Among Loot Secured By Santa Ana Burglars

The daring daylight robbery of the residence of District Attorney A. P. Nelson, 1701 North Broadway, Santa Ana, and the spectacular attempt on the part of a youthful burglar to loot the home of R. R. Allen, oil worker, 600 West Wilshire avenue, Fullerton, in which Allen grappled with the thief, who escaped before state motorcycle police arrived, engrossed the attention of police in those two cities and Orange county deputy sheriffs today.

Two men who drove up to the Nelson residence some time between 10 a. m. and 3:30 p. m. yesterday, while the Nelsons were absent, were blamed for the ransacking of the home and the disappearance of approximately $1000 worth of jewelry and lingerie, the local police said.

Attempts Escape, Trapped.
The Fullerton thief was surprised in the act of robbing the house by Mr. and Mrs. Allen. Trapped, the burglar made a dash for the back door but on finding that means of exit locked turned to meet his pursuer in a terrific hand to hand battle.

While the two fought from room to room and finally into the yard, Mrs. Allen in her car drove up and down the main street of Fullerton in search of a patrolman and finally sought the aid of the state motorcycle officers, she reported today. When the officers arrived the burglar had made good his effort to elude capture. Good clues as to his identity were found, it was said.

Maid Sees Suspects.
The fact that a maid in a house across from the Nelson home saw two men drive past the residence of the district attorney several times in a touring car before they made their way to the back door of the house after leaving a truck in front, was considered an important "lead" by the police. Fingerprints and footprints were left in profusion, the officers added.

SAYS BRITISH AIM TO 'LYNCH' POETS

LONDON, May 23.—"The commercial press has joined with the mob in trying to lynch every new poet of any worth," charges Miss Edith Sitwell, who is an earnest young poet, and the sister of those amazing Sitwell brothers—Osbert and Sacheverell—who have already announced they have given their poetical work to posterity.

"When we are serious we are charged with insulting the public," wails Miss Sitwell. "When we are gay we are told that we are pulling the legs of the critics."

"These people are so self-conscious about their legs that they would think they were centipedes."

"I don't share the English passion for being bored. The result of this passion is that amusement in England has become a terribly heavy and incompetent affair."

Miss Sitwell has contributed greatly to the success of recent London revues by virtue of the fact that burlesque of her and her brothers have kept audiences in sternal laughter.

"Revue is invariably written by uneducated persons, with no talent for writing, no technique, no wit and no sense of beauty," she says in paying her respects to her burlesquers. "The lyrics might be written by a mouldy, libidinous old sheep dying of footrot and senile decay in a field."

BOGUS MEDICAL MEN SEEK TO EVADE BAN

PHILADELPHIA, May 23.—Foreign medical students have set upon a new plan to evade the immigration quota set by the United States, by a circuitous route States, by which leads them through the back-door of the school room.

Only by checking up the students' credentials with the closest scrutiny is the possibility of fraud in the quota being reduced to a minimum.

This is the opinion of Dr. William Pepper, dean of the medical school of the University of Pennsylvania.

"Bona fide students of recognized colleges and universities are not included in the quotas set on foreign countries by the United States, and for this reason we have an increased number of students coming from war-ravaged territories. So universally is the status of a student held in high esteem that again and again we meet with someone trying to enter the country in that guise."

"Only recently a young woman came here and, with tears in her eyes, asked me to accept as a student a young man in whom she had become interested and who was at that time being held at Ellis Island for deportation. When asked for his credentials, she told me they had been taken from him in Petrograd and for that reason could not be produced. The woman had just married the man, and was trying to get him into the country as an 'accepted' student of the university."

"This dodging of the quota and the increased influx of foreign physicians coming to the United States are two of the grave problems at the present time facing the medical profession."

"The United States has always been generous in its welcome of physicians from other countries. The rules governing their licenses have never been as severe as those governing the American physicians who seek to practice in foreign countries, restrictions on which in some countries are so strict as to be almost prohibitive."

"In earlier years, foreign physicians coming here were comparatively few, but now they have almost become a menace."

GREAT CORPORATION SEEKS LESS LOSS IN SMALL ITEMS

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift

IN a laudable effort to teach its employees the value of economy, the Bethlehem Steel Corporation has issued a bulletin pointing out how items usually considered unimportant cost the corporation many thousands of dollars each year and thereby affect the progress of the workers themselves.

In calling attention to various items of needless waste, the point is made that "waste is one of the things that are preventable without hardship. In the long run it is not always the other fellow who foots the bill. Waste and wages are both paid from the same pocket-book."

The co-relationship of waste elimination and individual self-interest is often not realized. Yet in every business organization the success of the company or firm means greater success for each individual on its payroll.

Eliminating waste in trivial matters not only contributes to the direct financial advantage of the company, but, what is of still greater importance, it lifts morale and heightens efficiency.

The Bethlehem Corporation's bulletin points out some of the items often wasted and what the company paid for these items last year, as follows: electric light bulbs, $200,000; shovels, $30,000; windows, $25,855; brooms, $17,255; paper towels, $14,780; soap, $8,161. The same bulletin states that a wasted shovelful of coal means the loss of 4c; a piece of tin plate, 5c; 100 pounds of 4x4 billet, $2.00; a brick, 5c to 33c.

Thrift does not mean merely saving one's money. It means also economy in the trivial materials of routine life. To waste these, even though the amount involved is very small, is unjust to others as well as to ourselves.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas Sourness and Pain How to Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sits in the stomach, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any drugist a few ounces of Bisulphate of Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisulphate of Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.—Adv.

PRESIDENT TO WAGE PORCH CAMPAIGN

WASHINGTON, May 23.—President Coolidge, having demonstrated to Washington recently that the front porch of the white house can be used as a porch ordinarily is, intends to conduct his campaign for the presidency from there, just as Mr. Harding conducted his from the porch of his home in Marion.

Mr. Coolidge recently surprised White House attaches by sitting out on the north porch, where nobody ever sits. Heretofore, the president or his family, wishing to relax a moment, have used the more secluded south porch, which looks out over the handsome grounds of the executive mansion, towards the Washington monument.

The president has found the White House very comfortable. Mrs. Coolidge, too, likes it. They have decided against a "summer white house" though they could have their pick of half a dozen places in New England or elsewhere. But they will stay right here, using the yacht Mayflower for trips down the Potomac, with possibly an occasional cruise beyond the Virginia capes.

No long campaign trips have been projected for Mr. Coolidge.

He probably will make a few trips to deliver speeches, but he wants to do as little of that as possible. The only circumstance likely to change the program would be an obvious unavoidable need for the candidate personally to take charge of his campaign, to swing around the circle and appeal directly to the voters for their support. Even then Mr. Coolidge would leave Washington with reluctance. His political methods depend much more on organization and the tried agencies that have won so many campaigns, rather than on the oratorical appeal of the candidate himself.

Mr. Coolidge is not overly fond of speechmaking. He does not wish to subject himself to the strain of long campaign trips, and it is one of his beliefs that a President while in office, has no right to absent himself for long periods from his post, even to insure his election.

Many invitations are being received at the White House for speeches this summer. Most of them have received thus far no definite answer. They have been acknowledged, with the assurance that the President will give them his consideration. A little later on, a selection will be made, and the President will accept those which to him and his managers seem best to fit in with the campaign strategy.

While members of the police department here were seeking three runaway boys, ranging in ages from 12 to 14 years, Thomas M. Randall, city hall janitor, today found two more runaway youngsters asleep in the lumber yard of the Whitson Lumber company, 410 North Artesia street. The lads, who were 14 and 16 years of age, left their homes in Los Angeles two days ago, they told Randall. Their parents were notified by the local police.

The other boys left Los Angeles Tuesday morning and were believed to be headed for San Diego, according to the father of one of the lads. One of the runaways is 12 years old, five feet tall, weighs 85 pounds, has dark brown eyes, black hair, no shoes, no coat, wore short cutaway pants and cap.

The second runaway is 14, five feet tall, weighs 100 pounds, wears blue overalls, white shirt, green coat and brown cap. The third boy is 14, four feet nine inches tall, weighs 95 pounds, has black eyes, black hair, blue overalls, green sweater with yellow spots and a brown cap.

REPORT CYCLES STOLEN
Two bicycles were stolen late yesterday from the automobile parking lot at the rear of The Register building, it was reported today at the police station. One 406 East Walnut street, and the other belonged to Lavelle Grabill, 726 South Sycamore street.

Weapon Carrying Case Trial Set

Judge R. Y. Williams of the superior court here today set the date of trial for Jesus Jiminez, charged with carrying a concealed weapon, for June 10 at 10 a. m. Jiminez, Yorba Mexican, pleaded not guilty when arraigned on the charge. He was accused of the offense after he had been tried and acquitted of a burglary charge, in connection with the looting of the Holland Service station at Richfield.

DISCONTINUE APPEAL FOR AID FUNDS

With only one call for assistance being made in the last three weeks, the executive committee of the City Federation of Parent-Teacher associations today had decided to discontinue further appeal for funds for aiding persons in Santa Ana, who had been distressed financially by affliction in the recent epidemic here. It was announced today by Mrs. G. V. Linsenbard, chairman of the relief committee of the federation.

Only One Case on Hand Meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. Harry Leipsic, 1905 North Main street, the executive committee canvassed the situation, and voted to discontinue further efforts to increase the relief fund.

The committee now has one case in charge, that of a family, where employment of two nurses is necessary. It was thought that the committee would have sufficient funds on hand to continue relief for this family until the sick members had recovered.

Since starting its campaign of relief in January, the committee has received $1839.95, of which $315 was developed by the entertainment given recently at the high school auditorium. The committee today had a cash balance of $175, it was stated.

Committee Is Grateful "The relief committee and the members of the federation deeply appreciate the assistance given in its efforts to relieve distress in the city," said Mrs. Linsenbard.

The response has been generous to our appeals for funds for carrying on our work. It has been a practical demonstration that citizens of Santa Ana are interested in their neighbors. The committee has had splendid co-operation from women identified with the various Parent-Teacher associations, and the fact that they have met every emergency and call for help has made the work of the committee less than it otherwise would have been.

"We want to express in this public way to every one who had any part in assisting us, our very deepest thanks and appreciation." Calling attention to the fact that a great deal of the money received had been dispersed in loans, the committee chairman said that upon its repayment it would go into the relief fund for use in assisting parents who may be temporarily embarrassed or in assisting children in pursuing their studies.

Quash Prosecution In Oil Stock Case

Prosecution of R. W. Rouselle, local oil stock salesman charged with embezzlement, was dropped today with the dismissal of the charge in Justice Jack Landel's court here. Dismissal was made on motion of the district attorney's office, for the reason, it was said, that evidence to justify prosecution was lacking.

Rouselle had been accused of embezzling funds entrusted to him for investment in stock.

CLEAN UP LOTS IN CEMETERY, IS PLEA

V. W. Whitson, chairman of the cemetery committee of the Chamber of Commerce here, today issued an appeal to lot owners at the Santa Ana cemetery to clean them before Memorial day.

The old burial ground is now in better condition than it ever has been for Memorial day, Whitson said, adding that the appearance of the lots would be still more greatly improved were they raked. Virtually every lot was cleared recently through co-operation of the county, Whitson said. Little work remains to be done.

"Many pioneers are buried in the old plot," Whitson declared. "Friends and relatives of many have moved away and there is no one to look after their graves. It should be a matter of pride on the part of local residents to volunteer their services in clearing the neglected spots."

The Tagus

While America has had disastrous overflows in its Potomac and Cumberland rivers, Spain and Portugal have been suffering a similar fate at the hands of the Tagus, their largest stream. A bulletin from the National Geographic society tells something of this river, which is the joint possession of the kingdom and the republic.

"The Tagus is one of the rivers of the world that is not blessed with smiling, productive banks throughout most of its course," says the bulletin. "It has carved its way through one of the most desolate and most thinly-peopled parts of Europe, the bare, arid plateau of central Spain. For scores of miles the Tagus flows through this semi-desert land of Spain like some American stream in Utah or Arizona, with not even a hamlet on its banks or an isolated railway bridge to bring it to at intervals a touch of the modern world. Through much of its course there is not even vegetation worthy of note along its banks—merely a few stunted evergreen oaks and some tufts of coarse grass.

"For a very considerable part of its course the Tagus flows in a narrow gorge cut far below the level of the dry upland plains, with nothing to indicate its situation until one reaches its precipitous banks. There are two exceptions, however. At Aranjuez, thirty miles southeast of Madrid, and at Talavera, seventy-five miles farther downstream, the constricting walls recede and the river flows for a space through fertile valleys. It is these infrequent valleys—cases that furnish practically the only points vulnerable to floods along the Spanish Tagus.

$4000 SKIRVIN GEM ROBBERY CLUE TRACED

After working constantly for a year to solve the mystery surrounding the bold holdup of C. S. Skirvin, former Iowa newspaper publisher, at his home, 1501 North Broadway, May 26, 1923, City Marshal C. L. Rogers today announced that he had definitely ascertained the identity of a woman and two men who were involved in the plot which resulted in Skirvin losing nine diamonds valued at $4000.

The man who "promoted" the robbery, according to Rogers, is a former Santa Ana bootlegger. The woman who gave the thieves the information concerning the gems also was a former resident of this city. A reward of $1000 has been offered for the earrest and conviction of the gunman who compelled Skirvin to open his safe and give up the jewels. Skirvin yesterday identified the marshal's photograph of the gunman.

The crime promoter, as Rogers called the former bootlegger of this city, is wanted in Norwalk and another city for being implicated in bank robberies.

The city marshal did not care to disclose the names of the wanted characters until the police net was closed safely around the trio, he said.

Man Injured When Car Wheels Lock

While motoring at 6 p. m. yesterday south of Santa Ana, L. T. Wells of Huntington Beach "locked wheels" with another automobile which was being cranked by an unidentified Mexican, according to a report at the sheriff's office today. The Mexican was said to have been injured and was taken to his home in Talbert by a friend.

ed prominence in Spanish history along the Tagus. Here, at one time, was a city of several hundred thousand inhabitants when Toledo was the capital of Visigoth Spain. The Tagus was the huge and impassable most for the old city, sweeping around three sides of it in a gorge 200 feet deep. On the fourth side were high walls. "Plunging" into its deep canyon near Toledo, the Tagus flows between steep walls for most of the remainder of its passage through Spanish territory. At Alcantara, near the western border, it is spanned by a sturdy old Roman viaduct, 'Trojan's Bridge,' that, has stood in efficient simplicity for seventeen centuries. "Eighteen miles after it crosses the Portuguese border, the Tagus becomes navigable for the first time, and boats ply upon its waters from that point to its mouth, 115 miles down stream. As though by way of compensation for its uselessness and solitude during most of its passage to the sea, the Tagus forms near its mouth one of the best harbors in existence, that of Lisbon. The river widens into a tidal lake about twenty miles above Lisbon and narrows down to normal width again just before emptying into the Atlantic.

News Notes of Interest To Women

China Offers Theme For Afternoon of Mission Study

When members of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the First M. E. church entered the church parlors yesterday afternoon for the enjoyment of an address on China by Mrs. Frank Toothaker and a program emphasizing the theme, they were greeted by the sight of an artistic and attractive poster, representing China.

This was the clever work of a fifteen year old lad, Berle Widener of South Sycamore street, acclaimed by all present as a coming artist.

Many phases of foreign mission work were presented during the session, Mrs. D. M. Peters led in a helpful devotional service, Mrs. D. J. Palmer told of the King's Herald's thank offering to be held June 14 and of the school in Rangoon, India, which they will help to build. Mrs. Jessie Miller spoke of the work of the Standard Bearer, who will hold a food sale at the Blauer grocery, Saturday, to make money for their scholarship. These young women are the coming leaders of missionary work and some of them are already planning to make foreign missions their life work.

Mrs. S. M. Davis gave an excellent summary of the X-Y-Z-dary on China, this being a preparation for and introduction to the address by Mrs. Frank Toothaker of Yenching, China, whose furlough is about ended.

Mrs. Toothaker was formerly Miss Bess Hanning, a Santa Ana girl, who went with her husband five years ago to China to engage in missionary work. Her address was brimful of interest to those who during the past years have known of her work. She told of the home life of the rich Chinese women, of the home life and work of the missionaries and of the children in the schools of Yenching, where the local auxiliary supports a Bible woman.

One of the speaker's exhibits was her own beautiful little four year old boy dressed in the costume of a Chinese gentleman's child. At the close of the address a shower was given to Mrs. Toothaker to take from the Santa Ana friends to her far away home. A dollar shower was also given for the Bible woman in Yenching. A number of articles sent by the son of Mr. and Mrs. Velmar Steward were shown, among them being a wonderfully embroidered banner.

During the social hour the committee served punch and home made cakes.

Aid Society

Devoting the morning hours to tending comforts, First Presbyterian Aid society members yesterday met at the church parlors and after the busy forenoon enjoyed a social chat around the luncheon tables and an afternoon business and entertaining program.

One hundred and twenty-five interested women enjoyed the occasion during the morning and luncheon hours and others joined them for the afternoon when devotionals were led by Mrs. Elizabeth Clark. The dining-room and parlor were lavishly decorated with beautiful flowers which later were collected and sent as messengers of cheer to the sick and shut-in.

A pleasant feature of the afternoon were the readings given by Mrs. George Richardson who gave "Joe and Snitching on a Boy" followed by "Briars."

Post-Nuptial Affair For Newly-Weds Is Most Pleasant

A congenial evening was spent last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Cochems, where Mr. and Mrs. George Jubber, a recent bride and groom, were guests of honor, and Mrs. Oscar Cochems and Mrs. Seaman were hostesses.

Five hundred was enjoyed, and first prizes for high score were won by Mrs. Sydney Eggleston and Mr. Eggleston respectively; consolation prizes fell to Mrs. Jubber and Mr. Jack Waldie. At a late hour dainty refreshments of a variety of sandwiches, cake, ice cream and coffee were served.

Assembled to meet Mr. and Mrs. Jubber were Mrs. E. Cochems and daughter Adeline, Mr. and Mrs. Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. McGinnis, Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Eggleston, Mrs. Everett Eggleston and daughters Virginia and Margaret, Miss Florence and Evangeline Cochems, Jack Waldie, Reuben Wassaw and Earl Robbins.

Interesting Speaker At Parish Hall

Dr. Anne Nicholson, of Washington, D. C., addressed a meeting of Orange county Catholic women in the parish hall of St. Ann's church on Borchard avenue, Thursday evening.

Dr. Nicholson, as representative of the National Council of Catholic Women, explained the aims and purposes of that organization, namely to nationalize and broaden the scope of existing parish organizations of Catholic women.

The National Council was established at Washington, D. C. in September, 1919, under the leadership of the late Cardinal Gibbons. An annual convention is held for the discussion of common problems and interchange of ideas. A national school is also maintained for the training of social workers. Much interest was displayed in Dr. Nicholson's talk.

Parent-Teachers

McKINLEY SCHOOL
Yesterday afternoon at the first meeting of McKinley P.-T. A. for the school year, scores of mothers gathered at the school to enjoy a program of charm followed by a happy social hour.

Opening with a song by little Miss Jeannette Wright, the program was a most enjoyable one. The youthful singer won much praise for her sweet voice. The address of the afternoon was given by the Rev. H. G. Burgess, who held the close attention of his audience with his eloquent talk on "Americanization." It was said that the sole criticism that could be offered for the speaker was that he made his talk too brief.

Miss Geraldine Cole, a piano pupil of Harry Garstang, made her first public appearance and gave great pleasure with two beautifully rendered piano numbers. A business session followed with the following new officers elected for next year: Mrs. F. H. Heine, president; Mrs. L. W. Lauderbach, first vice-president; Mrs. C. E. Wilson, second vice-president; Miss Carrie Marx, secretary and Mrs. Boyd, treasurer.

Following the introduction of the officers, the remainder of the afternoon was devoted to a pleasant social time rendered still more delightful by the serving of fruitade and wafers by the hostesses, Mrs. G. S. Ludlow and Mrs. J. J. Hersher.

LOWELL SCHOOL
Tuesday afternoon, May 27, members of Lowell school's P.-T. A. will meet in the social kindergarten at 2:30 for the final session of the year.

An informal reception will be staged honoring a little group of teachers who will not return next year. All members are urged to be present.

Ebell's Hospitality To Continue Monday Afternoon and Eve

Following closely upon the opening social event in the newly completed Ebell clubhouse, last night's delightful dinner attended by over 250 members and guests including countless Ebell husbands, will come the May meeting, scheduled for Monday, May 26 at the usual meeting hour of 2 o'clock.

Elaborate plans have been made for the event which will mark the formal dedication of the handsome building and its acceptance by the Ebell women as their club home.

An effort to have present every Ebell ex-president, has been chanced with success and these splendid women, representative of the best the community affords, will each have prominent part on the program.

Furthermore, a delightful musical entertainment will be presented, featuring three such vocalists as few cities the size of Santa Ana can boast, Mrs. Herbert M. Sammis, music chairman of Orange county's federated clubs, Mrs. F. W. Slabaugh and Madame Manuella Budrow.

Associated with them on the program will be James Willis Rice of Tustin, in violin numbers. The connection of Mr. Rice with the Ebell society, is a very close and very beautiful one, for during the lifetime of his mother, Mrs. James S. Rice, the mother with her beautiful voice, was one of the club's most beloved and most accomplished members, and the son with a pronounced talent for the violin, frequently played the obligatos for his mother's songs.

County club presidents will be honored guests Monday afternoon and elaborate plans for their entertainment include refreshments, while punch will be served in the patio. The evening hours will be devoted to an informal reception when all Ebell friends will be welcomed and the entire clubhouse be thrown open for inspection. Punch will be served in the patio in the evening hours also and a pleasing musical program will feature S. J. Mustel and his high school orchestra.

Well-Known Vocalist Returning to Open Studio In City

Undoubtedly a warm welcome awaits the return to her home city, of Eleanor Woodford, dramatic soprano, who after an absence of five years, is returning to Santa Ana to open a studio where she will receive voice students two days each week after June 15.

While five years have elapsed since Mrs. Woodford's voice glorified the services at the First Presbyterian church where she was soprano soloist, her friends have never forgotten her and have watched with interest her career in the east and abroad where she studied.

Since returning again to the western coast where her first triumphs were achieved, Mrs. Woodford has appeared before musical audiences in many of the nearby cities, one of her most successful recitals being given before the Friday Morning club of Los Angeles, where she appeared with Alexander Dobrohotov, formerly of the Imperial Russian Balalaika orchestra.

Pasadena, Long Beach and other nearby cities have enjoyed the singer's delightful musical evenings and Santa Anans are interested in the announcement that they too will soon be given the opportunity of hearing her, for Mrs. Woodford will precede the opening of her studio with a recital to be staged at a local theater in conjunction with Lillian Gunther, danseuse and Victor Edmunds, tenor, who achieved such success at his recent recitals given at the local Methodist Episcopal church.

Mrs. Woodford will maintain her classes in the studio of Clarence Gustlin at his home, 816 North Main street, where after the middle of June she will receive pupils for voice try-outs. The tentative date of June 1 has been discussed for her recital, but not definitely selected. Announcement of the exact date will be made in the near future.

Father and Daughter To Join In Banquet

While Father and Son banquets are even more familiar than Mother and Daughter affairs, it remained for the Aid society of the First Christian church to introduce an innovation in a "Father-Daughter" banquet which they will stage at the basement dining room of the church next Thursday night, May 29, at 6:30 o'clock.

Fathers of all denominations will be welcomed if accompanied by a daughter or by several daughters, the only age limit recognized being for the daughters who may be between eight and twenty years old. A truly delectable dinner menu will be offered at a very nominal sum, all proceeds to go to the Intermediate Christian Endeavor fund in its pledge to the Christian College.

Guests at Bridge Tea Enjoy Hospitality Of Flagg Home

Presiding at a smartly appointed bridge tea, Mrs. A. G. Flagg was a recent hostess at her charming home, 1320 North Broadway, where seven tables were arranged for playing.

Unusually beautiful floral decorations were apparent, Mrs. Flagg using a wealth of summer blossoms in every imaginable flower tint. In arranging her tables for serving the dainty tea menu, she allowed the flowers to remain as background and centered each table with a gaily tinted basket filled with nuts and bonbons.

The Misses Margaret and "Jimmie" Flagg, daughters of the home with two of their young friends, Miss Rebecca Joplin and Miss Mabel Zeigler of Anaheim, assisted in pleasant hostess duties. Prizes of exquisite handwork were given to Mrs. Alex P. Nelson scoring high, Mrs. Walter Vandermast, second high and Mrs. D. Eymann Huff, holding low score.

Women's Guild

Exceedingly interesting and quite well attended was the recent meeting of the Women's Guild of the Church of the Messiah held in the Parish hall, when several new members were welcomed.

One of the outstanding matters discussed was the dinner held in the hall late last week and when all details connected with it were finally settled it was announced that the affair had netted the guild the sum of $170.

Plans for the summer bazaar revealed the fact that the date of June 4 had been selected and Mrs. W. H. Hadron, guild president, named chairmen as follows: fancy work booth, Mrs. George Chapman; cooked food, Mrs. Oliver Remsburg; tea table, Mrs. Jack Taylor and white elephant booth, Mrs. Rensil Brown.

While the bazaar never approaches the mid-winter bazaar in scope or importance, yet it is an eagerly anticipated affair which offers members and friends the opportunity to acquire a dainty bit of embroidery for summer adornment of their homes, gay little aprons for summer wear, towels of every known variety for replenishing linen shelves, and other appreciated articles, while the social side is always a delightful one and the cooked food booth offers opportunity to acquire something different from one's own cookery.

The hours of the bazaar will be from 2 to 5 p. m. and in addition to the tea booth, ice cream and cake will be served.

At the meeting where all these details were discussed, members enjoyed a tea table chat when Mrs. George Chapman and Mrs. Vern Bishop were hostesses.

CLEVELAND NOT OUT OF RACE SAYS TRIS

By HENRY L. FARRELL, (United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, May 23.—"Cleveland is not out of the American league pennant race. We are just getting started," Tris Speaker, manager of the Indians, said last night before leaving for Boston.

Many critics before the season opened picked Cleveland to be the runner up to the Yankees and the pennant winner if the champions happened to blow their fine chances.

When the Ohio club got away to a bad start and floundered around in the second division, the reason was hard to find. Some eastern critics said the team had been vastly overrated.

The Indians had only one chance, when it wasn't raining, to show against the Yankees, but in that one game they looked like a real formidable club. Speaker admits that his pitching disappointed him and it must have been the loose work in the box that has kept the club down in the race.

VIOLIN PUPILS WIN APPLAUSE IN AIR BILL

The music pupils of Elwood Bear, instructor in violin, appeared in recital at the Register studio last evening and their good work was broadcast over KPAW from 6:50 to 7:30 o'clock.

The young violinists presented a program of general excellence from the first number to the last. The selections were made up of the works of noted composers. Georgia Belle Walton, young Santa Ana girl, who recently won the gold medal denoting the best schoolgirl violinists in Orange county, was the star of the recital. She played two numbers with her sister, Marjorie, acting as her accompanist. Only fourteen years of age, she plays with a confidence and understanding far beyond her years.

Due to the great length of the program, listeners in did not have the opportunity of hearing Elwood Bear.

A large attendance at the Register studio was brought out by last night's program which consisted of the following violin numbers: "Nocturne" (Greenwald), William Friend, Lois Lamb at the piano; "Shepherd's Dream" (Heim), Frances Tappan, Pearl Oberlin at the piano; "Berceuse" (Conte), Harper Goff, Mrs. Taylor at the piano; "Old English Dance" (Greenwald), Ruth Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Kirkpatrick at the piano; "Sonatina" (Hauptman), Marjorie Pollock, Mrs. Pollock at the piano; "Fantasia" (Mollenhauer), Loren Porter, Vida Mitchell at the piano; "Kulawiak" (Wienawski), Ralph Greer, Mrs. Greer at the piano; "The Boy Paganini" (Mollenhauer), Everett Lutz, Mrs. Steadman at the piano; (a) "Bohler" (Bohm), (b) "Norma-Semiramide" (Dancila), Georgia Belle Walton, Marjorie Walton at the piano; "Pupils' Concerto in G" (Seitz), Emaline Richards, Marjorie Walton at the piano; "Gypsy Dance" (Beaumont), Rowena Newcomb, Helen Drake at the piano; "El Pastorito" (Wilson), Dorothy Lutz, Adele Lutz at the piano; "Minuet in G" (Beethoven), Robert Jansen, Mrs. Jansen at the piano.

CITY MANAGER IS NAMED AT ANAHEIM

J. W. Price, who has been building inspector for the city of Anaheim during the last four years, was city manager there today, following his unexpected appointment at a "surprise" session of the city council last night.

Price's appointment came after it was generally understood that the new council would abandon the city manager form of government. The resignation May 1 of former Manager O. E. Steward, cemented this belief. But last night Price was appointed, the council having revised its plans.

It was announced that the building department will now be consolidated with the engineering department, now in charge of W. J. Butler. An engineer, either Butler or a successor, is scheduled to be appointed at the next meeting of the council.

Justice Charles Kuechel, of Anaheim, recently appointed by the county supervisors, was last night made city recorder by the council, thus consolidating those two posts. Kuechel succeeds J. Fred Ahlborn, who has been acting recorder since the resignation of the late G. B. Brown. Brown resigned his post as recorder shortly before his death.

Onion Soup

1 tablespoon Kitchen Bouquet; 5 large onions; 1 tablespoon finely minced carrot; 3 tablespoons butter; 5 tablespoons flour; 3½ pints boiling water; salt and pepper to taste; 3 bouillon cubes; ½ cup thin cream. Peel and parboil onions for 3 minutes, drain and chop fine. Place in saucepan with carrot and butter and simmer 5 minutes. Add flour, stir and add boiling water, salt and pepper and cook slowly a half hour. Strain, add bouillon cubes and stir until dissolved. Add Kitchen Bouquet and cream. Place several pieces toast in tureen, pour over soup and serve at once.

Mock Terrapin Soup

Boil 1½ pounds of calf's liver in salt water for half an hour; add small herbs; 6 grains of pepper; one teaspoonful doves; a few slices of onion, carrot, etc. When the vegetables are done, take them out and mash by putting them through a colander. Make a Spanish sauce by frying bacon; put into the fat a little slice of onion, 6 peppers, two sprigs celery, one-half cup tomato and cook brown. Make a paste of one teaspoonful of salad oil, a yolk of hard boiled egg, dust of cayenne pepper, make into small balls; put these into Spanish sauce, then put the sauce into the soup. When they come to the top, skim them out. Add 1 teaspoonful Kitchen Bouquet. Put in the tureen a slice of lemon, and pour in the soup, then cut the calf's liver into small bits and add it.

Savory Chowder

1 teaspoonful Kitchen Bouquet; 1 qt. diced raw potatoes; ¾ lb. chipped beef; 4 tablespoons butter; 1 cupful corn; 1 medium-sized onion, chopped fine; a small piece of red pepper; 1½ cupfuls hot milk; 2 cupfuls hot water. Put butter, onion, meat and some of the potatoes in the saucepan and fry golden brown, then add hot water and the rest of the potatoes and pepper. Stew slowly till done, about 1 hour. If one uses green corn, score down the rows of kernels and scrape out the inside. Cook this in a little water separately, being careful not to scorch it. When the other mixture is done, add the hot milk, corn, Kitchen Bouquet and salt to taste. Let boil up once and serve hot with crackers.

DATA ON LEMON INDUSTRY ARE SOUGHT HERE

A statistician of the federal tariff commission, in company with F. O. Wallschlag of Los Angeles, secretary of the California Citrus Protective league, visited the managers of several Orange county lemon associations yesterday, according to L. D. Palmer, manager of the Oregon County Fruit exchange.

Palmer said the commission representative is making a special investigation of the California lemon industry with reference to cost of production for the development of data for permanent records of the commission at Washington.

Visits were made to the packing houses of the Tustin Lemon association and the Central Lemon Growers' association.

"The tariff on lemons is not threatened and the investigation has nothing to do with a contemplated fight for a lowering of the levy on imported fruits," said Palmer.

"The investigator gave this assurance. He was emphatic in his statement that he was developing data for use of the commission in case there should arise a movement for either increasing or lowering the tariff rates. He said data available would be valuable in aiding the commission in arriving at conclusions on any point that might be brought up in the matter of a tariff on lemons," Palmer added.

Court Test Made As to Exclusive Realty Listings

Just how binding an "exclusive" real estate listing may be, was in prospect of being tested today in Superior Judge Z. B. West's court, where M. J. Graves, Anaheim real estate man, was seeking to collect a commission on the sale of a service station belonging to M. A. Maxwell, Anaheim.

Graves did not sell the service station, but he had, he alleged, an exclusive listing on it, which provided that he should receive a commission no matter who sold it.

Further, he alleged, he had a buyer ready to purchase the station. But when he brought the ascertained prospect, Ernest Arkebauer, to see Maxwell, he found that Maxwell had, himself, sold the service station to another party. Maxwell refused to pay the commission so Graves filed suit against him in the superior court.

The trial was under way today before Judge West, Graves being represented by Attorney N. B. Nelson, with Attorney G. K. Scovel of Head, Rutan and Scovel, appearing for Maxwell.

IMPROVEMENT LEAGUE IS ORGANIZED

Organization of the West-Northwest Improvement and Development association had been perfected today for development and promotion of interests of property owners in the west and north-west sections of the city.

The association was created at a meeting at the city council chambers last night of seventy-five freeholders. L. E. Martin was elected president; W. C. Childers, vice president; and Floyd Croddy, secretary and treasurer.

Everett A. White, one of the speakers of the evening, discussed contemplated improvements in the district, and, with the aid of a city map, pointed out the streets on which petitions for paving already have been filed.

"Now is the opportune time for members of the association to give consideration to the importance of the city acquiring a large park site and to the necessity for another grammar school building in the northwest district," White said.

A committee was appointed to meet with the city council at 7:30 a. m. tomorrow at the corner of Eighth and Bristol streets. The board is to make personal investigation of conditions on Bristol street with reference to widening the street from forty to sixty feet.

The association will meet at the council chamber on June 6, when announcement will be made of the personnel of the publicity, grievance and executive committees. Martin said no specific boundaries have been established for the district and that membership is open to any property owner interested in the association.

Roots and Herbs Best for Kidneys

Daniel G. Carey, M. D.

BACKACHE

said Dr. Carey is a pretty sure sign that all is not well with your kidneys. Delay may be dangerous—thousands of people die every year from kidney troubles and many could be saved if the right medicine was taken in time.

Dr. Carey knew how to mix roots and herbs and for over 40 years his famous Marshroot Prescription 777 helped thousands of despairing people. It's the one remedy for backache troubles. Don't take chances—ask for it by name—liquid or tablet form—equally good. 75c. C. S. Kelley Drug Store. Mail orders accepted. —Adv.

FAMED CIPHER EXPERT ONCE BOTANIST

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Employment of W. F. Friedman, war department code and cipher expert, to decode telegrams, recalls sensational work done by Friedman for the government during the World War. It recalls also the story of how Friedman, a botanical professor at the University of Wisconsin, became the nation's greatest cipher expert through the worldwide controversy of Bacon and Shakespeare.

It was Friedman, then in the employ of Col. D. F. Fabian, millionaire Chicago hobbyist, and the exponent of Bacon's authorship of certain Shakespearean works, who deciphered the famous Zimmerman note from Germany to Mexico, after it had baffled the entire war department. It was Friedman who came to the rescue of the department of justice and decoded the famous Chukkerbury letters disclosing the German plot to start a revolution in India against England, which resulted in the unmasking of German Consul Franz Bopp, at San Francisco, and numerous German and Hindu spies throughout the country.

Bared German Note
The translation of the Zimmerman note was considered by the state department to have been responsible for keeping powerful elements in Mexico from aiding Germany by border raids and other bigger schemes. It was what is known as the "Star Cipher," one of the most difficult in cryptography, and consisted of six mixed alphabets—a device invented centuries ago by the French Admiral Bazeris and apparently lost since then.

The Hindoo conspiracy letters apparently were harmless, but consisted of a code word thrown in here and there. The code words were selected from a book of poetry which Friedman found in a Chicago bookstore, and he dramatically rushed into federal court with the translation as the trial was closing.

Colonel Fabian educated, at his own expense at his estate at Geneva, Ill., 86 intelligence officers of the army early in the war, and the instruction was given by Friedman and his wife, a Vassar graduate, who is also an expert cryptologist. This instruction, the only cipher training given the American army during the war, was invaluable in France, and Friedman, physically unable to enlist in the army, was given a special commission and stationed at Pershing's headquarters, where he supervised the deciphering of the German secret messages.

Worked as Botanist
Fabian hired Friedman, a plant culture expert from the University of Wisconsin, to take of his gardens at Geneva before the war. At the time the eccentric millionaire was engaged in the Shakespeare-Bacon controversy. He hired a professor of English from Harvard to go to England and purchase Shakespeare originals.

The originals of "Venus and Adonis" and of "Troilus and Cressida" were bought at a fabulous price, and, by photographing the old woodcuts, Friedman, who became interested in the work, is alleged to have found the famous bi-litteral cipher and to have read, hidden in the apparently harmless text, the autobiography of Francis, Lord Bacon, and his own confession that he was the son of Queen Elizabeth.

CLAIMS DEAD WIFE HE WED IN SECRET

ROME, Ga., May 23.—A death-shattered marriage romance was revealed here the other day when George Bray of Detroit, appeared in the home of Mr. L. A. Farr of this city, and although a stranger to the family, requested the privilege of paying the funeral expenses of Miss Catherine Farr, 17-year-old schoolgirl, who died and was buried only 24 hours before.

It was the first time the girl's parents had seen or heard of Bray. The young man claimed the right of paying the funeral expenses on the grounds that the pretty girl was his wife. He explained that they were married by a local minister on February 9 last, and that immediately following he had to depart for Detroit. He said he received news of his wife's death from a brother, who knew of his wedding. He rushed to Rome, but too late for the funeral. The sweetheart that had become his wife only a few weeks before had been carried to the grave without his seeing her since the wedding.

Records in the ordinary's office here substantiated Bray's statement. The young wife died without revealing to her parents that she had been married. Pneumonia struck with terrible and swift effect in the romance. It was believed that the young wife was rendered unconscious before she realized that her illness was of such serious nature, and thus failed to disclose on her deathbed the secret marriage.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Hubby's salary should be spent "fifty-fifty" with friend wife, according to William F. Hirsch, who is giving a course on the "do and don'ts" of marriage at a Y. M. C. A. branch here. Advising men students on the "economic side of marriage," Hirsch said a man should not rush into matrimony without sufficient funds to furnish the love nest, pay the expenses of the wedding and the honeymoon and start in with at least two months' expense money in the bank.

LOVE TRIANGLE VICTIM DIES OF WOUNDS

LOS ANGELES, May 23.—The second death was added yesterday to the triple tragedy caused by the Johnson, died as a result of self-inflicted bullet wounds, following his murder of Mrs. Edith Lyle Milligan, his former wife, and wounding of William Milligan, her husband of but a few days.

Milligan, physicians believed today, will recover.

Authorities are still piecing together details of the love triangle which led to the shooting. The Milligans were married in 1914, it has been found, he later entering the army. Mrs. Milligan heard that he had been killed and married Hico.

A few months ago she heard that Hico had a wife and family in Armenia and secured an annulment. Last week Milligan returned unexpectedly, years after he was reported "dead in action." Their reunion was a joyous one, and the wedding followed.

Conquered

Scarlet fever and diphtheria have been entirely eliminated, says Dr. William H. Park, conservative physician of high standing nationally. He adds that a serum has been found that will prevent measles and check epidemics.

No battlefield victory ever was as valuable. But while one class of scientists toil to save life by conquering disease, another class burns midnight oil developing new ways to take life in war. Science simultaneously is our greatest friend and enemy.

SHORTAGE
Two million people have left the farms and flocked to the cities since 1920, the Department of Agriculture estimates. It is a natural movement resulting from overproduction of crops among other things. And it is gradually restoring the balance of prosperity between farming and city industry.

But there's a grave danger that the shifting from farms to cities will go too far and imperil the food supply. A shortage of farm labor already is reported by the government, the supply lately being only 92 farm hands for every 100 needed.

REWARD FOR WHIPPER
GILLINGHAM, England, May 23.—A fashionably dressed woman approached a former naval officer in a hotel here with an offer of 200 pounds if he would accompany her to Italy and thrash with a horsewhip her brother-in-law, who, she said, had been mistreating her sister. The officer refused the offer.

FORWARD

Machinery and science have worked such magic on the farm that 866 bushels of wheat are now grown on the same acreage that grew only 513 bushels in 1850. These are average figures for the whole country.

Machinery has increased production even more, in cities. In the last analysis, is the farmer much better off than his ancestor of the days before the Civil War? Or the city man? The answer depends on how you define happiness. If money and material possessions are the measures, machinery has brought progress. The price in character development and wholesome enjoyment of life—that price is fearfully high.

FORGERS

Forgers cause the nation a yearly loss of at least 50 million dollars, claims a bonding company. It's an old story. You read it year after year.

Meantime, the nation spends several times 50 million dollars to protect itself against forgery. Is the game worth the candle? It certainly is. Without the expensive vigilance, forgery losses would be many times as big as now. Protection always is expensive, and nearly always it is worth the cost, times over.

COMMON AILMENTS OF MIDDLE AGE

Are indicated in women by nervous conditions, irritability, melancholia, pains and aches in the back, dizzy spells, headaches and heat flashes. These trying conditions may be easily overcome and such symptoms controlled by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It will interest women to know that in a recent canvass among over one hundred and twenty thousand women, ninety-eight out of every hundred reported benefit from its use.

Veteran Musician Urges People of Santa Ana to Lend Patronage INFLUENCE FOR GOOD
O. F. Remsburg Predicts Full House When Local Men Heard May 29

"Santa Anans should crowd to capacity the auditorium of the Ebells clubhouse next Thursday evening, when the Santa Ana Symphony orchestra gives its first formal public concert," Oliver F. Remsburg, 2033 North Main street, veteran musician, who for many years played the bass viol with some of the most prominent orchestras of the United States, declared today.

"There is every reason to believe that the event will thus attract," he continued. "On the other hand, if the attendance should prove unsatisfactory, the occasion would still be one of the greatest significance culturally in the history of the city."

"Limited attendance would be nothing short of shameful—a conductor like D. C. Clafoni, and a group of musicians such as compose his orchestra, are deserving of every last bit of support that the city can give."

Undertaking Held Worthy

"This orchestra undertaking is one of the most worthy that we can have here. The influence of such an organization in bettering the lives of Santa Ana's men, women and children esthetically cannot be over-estimated."

"Persons who hesitate about purchasing tickets on the ground that musically perhaps the concert may not be altogether worthwhile, need have no such fears. The performance will be a feast of real music. An organization led by such a true musician, as Mr. Clafoni, with his virtually limitless ability and patience in training his orchestra members is certain to give unalloyed pleasure to all, whether of much or little musical taste."

Cypress Well in Oil Sand, Report; Success Expected

ANAHEIM, May 23.—That the Carmenta well on the General Petroleum lease north and west of Cypress has struck an oil sand at 4392 feet was the report received here today, although not officially confirmed. This well is three miles north and a half a mile west of Cypress.

At the present time the Gaddie well is standing cemented preparatory to drilling in with the expectation of securing a good flow of oil within the next few hundred feet. The log of the Carmenta well is declared by those in touch with the situation to conform in many ways with the Gaddie log, and it is expected that when the Gaddie well reaches the depth of the other hole a good formation will be reached and an excellent well brought in.

HAVER GHOST OF BOOTLEGGER IS SEEN

Disembodied, the soul of a bootlegger floating at night from his shanty in Orchard dale, a spot between Fullerton and Whittier in Orange county, and visits the house of a shepherd, who died several months ago.

Together they frolic, the night winds carrying their sighs to the far corners of the valley.

Haunted? A phantom, a spook, a specter inhabits Orchard dale. Such is the declaration of folk in the countryside there who say that night after night they have seen the wraith glide down the ozone to the rendezvous of his pastoral friend.

Not only have the people seen the apparition but Wednesday night the denizen of the unseen world was subjected to a very severe stoning, so it is said.

Boys Scared

Started into activity by the actual sight of the ghost, a number of small boys got into action with their legs but they couldn't capture the shade of the former purveyor of spirituous liquors because they were running the other way.

Jack Rogers, 16, James Anderson, 14, saw the shade first, it was said, and they told their folk, accompanying their recital with a spirited chattering of teeth. As the result of their discovery between 800 and 900 motorists gathered.

HERE ARE TWO VIEWS OF EBELL SOCIETY'S NEW CLUBHOUSE

EBELL BANQUET TOASTS GIVEN HUMOR TOUCH

Humor played a prominent part in the toasts that were made at the big banquet which last night formed the first formal social function held in the newly-completed clubhouse of the Ebells society of the Santa Ana valley.

At the same time, however, the speakers' sallies did not obscure, but rather enhanced the realization on the part of all present, that the occasion was one of supreme importance in the social and civic life of the city.

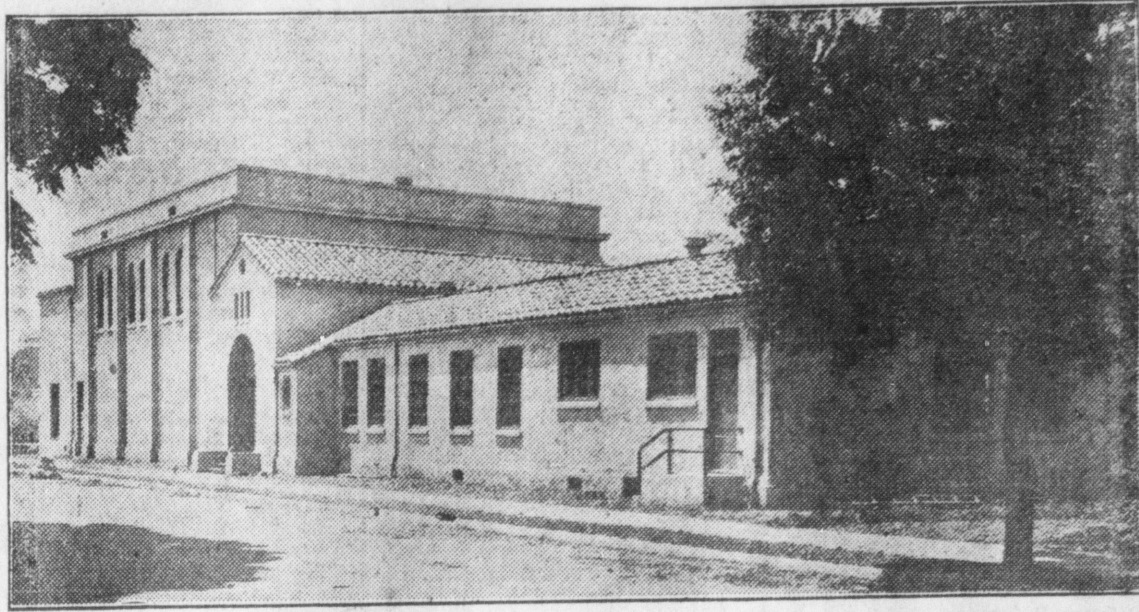

Mrs. A. J. Crookshank, president of the society, offering a toast to "Our Club Home," said in part: "A real toast is supposed to be light, airy and distinctly humorous, if not absolutely funny."

"Imagine anyone trying to be funny at the expense of our club house! We've had expense enough as it is with this club house, and our policy from the first has been to cut out all unnecessary and expensive luxuries wherever possible; obviously then, this cannot be a real toast."

"But we think our woman's club house, like some other things feminine, speaks for herself and most eloquently tonight. One might paraphrase the poet and say, 'to him who in the love of beauty holds communion with her visible forms she speaks a various language,' for visible on every side one sees the charm of line and structure, color and form of the beauty of utility skillfully conceived by the architect and successfully achieved by the builders."

"But—to him, who, in the love of beauty, holds communion with her invisible forms our club house speaks to the heart of each member of the imperishable things of which dreams are made, of the unutterable joy of dreams come true, of deathless memories and the satisfaction of accomplishments worth while."

"We hear in every footstep on this floor tonight the echo of many, many steps taken in pursuit of duty during the long years, all marching towards this goal. We hear faint and far away the patient

Guests at Ebells Clubhouse Affair See Plant Marvel

"It may take several years for Ebells clubwomen to cause a handsome building to grow on their lot, but once it is built there is no delay in causing plants to grow," declared Mrs. Hervey T. Trueblood last night as she "personally conducted" a group of guests through the handsome new Ebells clubhouse and paused for some time to enjoy the climate.

"See what California climate can do!" she continued, pointing out the ferns, trailing vines and thrifty shrubbery of the patio where yesterday morning was not a speck of green and where last night a charming garden effect was given.

Amused guests were all deeply impressed with the latest manifestation of the wonders of California's justly famous sunshine and ozone, but felt that a little credit might be given to the Ebells Garden section as well, whose efforts had ably seconded nature's, according to Mrs. Trueblood.

The patio promises to be the chief beauty spot of the clubhouse, when the Garden section shall have completed plans for its planting and when the fountain

HERE'S LIST OF PROMINENT SANTA ANANS WHO ATTENDED EBELL CLUBHOUSE FUNCTION

Reading like pages culled from the city's "blue book" is the roster of names of those who last night gathered at the new clubhouse of the Ebells Society of the Santa Ana Valley, to enjoy the initial function, the famous dinner to which friends and non-members of the society were welcomed, and its accompanying music and dance recital.

NEW CLUBHOUSE THROWN OPEN BY EBELL IN BRILLIANT FUNCTION

Building Termed Monument To Courage of Woman-kind of Santa Ana

BUILDING INSPECTED 'Husbands-Friends' Dinner Delectable; Program Wins All

BY ELEANOR ELLIOTT

Builded of dreams upon a foundation of faith, the Ebells clubhouse today lifted its stately head in triumph, a monument to the courage and perseverance of Santa Ana's woman-kind.

Dignified in design, beautiful in its proportions and handsomely appointed, the building is a fitting home for a splendid club, representative not only of Santa Ana, but of America's intelligent women. They, the members of the Ebells Society of the Santa Ana Valley, last night received the congratulations of their friends upon the consummation of their dreams, at the first function to be staged in the new home, the famous "Husbands and Friends" dinner.

Long ere the dinner hour of 6:30 arrived, guests began to seek the building where open doors and brilliantly lighted windows glowed with welcome. There was little attempt at a formal receiving line—but Ebells' president, Mrs. Angus J. Crookshank, and president-elect, Mrs. Terry E. Stephenson, with Mrs. Crookshank and Mr. Stephenson, remained near the door to greet as many as possible.

Evening Memorable

Followed a wonderful—a never-to-be-forgotten evening—an evening compounded of harmonious surroundings of a delightful program of friendly interchange, of greetings, of an epicurean feast and of generously voiced appreciation of all the elements working so harmoniously for the general pleasure.

Regardless of how closely they had watched the growth of the building, each member and guest took the opportunity to make a tour of the conveniently appointed dressing rooms, the lovely corridors bordering the patio, the spacious reception room with its restful furnishings, unobtrusively elegant, the section room, brilliant in black and orange, the severely plain board room, the great auditorium with its stage so excellently placed as to be in clear view even from the dining room, and finally the dining room itself with its five long rows of tables, its vivid floral decorations and its swiftly served culinary feast.

While all the furnishings of the clubhouse are in impeccable taste, those of the diningroom are especially worthy of mention. The light falls from wrought iron chandeliers with quantity leaded amber glass, giving a beautiful soothing glow. Window hangings of monk's cloth are severely plain and restful, and as the crowning point of the decorative effect are the brilliant plumaged peacocks which adorn the semi-circular upper halves of the windows. The five proud birds—one to a window—and their companion adorning the stage curtains were the clever handiwork of Mrs. Lewis Moulton, Mrs. Maude Chase, Mrs. F. P. Jayne and Miss Lida Crookshank.

Decorations Spanish

In keeping with the Spanish architecture of the building, it was deemed fitting that decorations for the opening function should be truly Spanish. Therefore the stage was most picturesque with serapes, blankets, rugs, woven baskets and other quaint and beautiful objects against massed pepper branches. The grand piano, courteously loaned by the Chandler Music company, bore as a cover, a priceless Spanish shawl loaned by the Foster family of San Juan Capistrano, one of Orange county's proud old Spanish families.

Low bowls and artistic baskets at intervals the length of the tables, held a varied profusion of lovely flowers. The beautiful gowns worn by the women added to the ered at the scene of the departed bootlegger's haunts last night, it was said, to await the coming of the soul from the other world. Did he come?

He did! Long after the majority of the crowd had sought the arms of Morpheus he appeared at the window of the deserted shanty. For a moment, it was said, he stood, his ghastly face wreathed in a ghastly smile.

Ghost Is Stoned. And then he glided down the wind to the shepherd's cabin. As he floated away he was greeted with a shower of cobblestones, ordinary bricks and common rocks.

Undismayed by the stony reception, he entered the quarters of his friend and was gone! Townspeople for miles around, it was said, can be frightened out of their wits by the unexpected rustle of leaves or the mournful wail of a hoot owl.

According to the story, when the bootlegger died his body at once became stone. Nevertheless, each evening he returns to the haunts of his worldly existence to chat over the day's happenings with his dead friend, the flockmaster.

When the wind whistles through the tops of the tall eucalyptus trees then his visit is near.

LEGION MEN COMPLETE MEMORIAL DAY PLANS

Plans for the celebration of Memorial day were completed at the semi-monthly meeting of Santa Ana Post No. 131, American Legion, held here last night, when it was decided that the post would meet at the Legion hall at 10 o'clock that day and hold its Memorial day services at the cemetery. Under the command of Capt. Joe Plank of this city a firing squad from the Orange post will fire a salute over the graves of the departed heroes.

The post has accepted an invitation from the Rev. W. A. McPeak and will attend the United Presbyterian church in a body, meeting at the American Legion hall at 10:30 a. m. and marching to the church. Civilian clothes will be worn. It was stated.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet at the Legion headquarters at the same time and will also march to the church, it was stated. After the regular order of Legion business a program of entertainment arranged by the entertainment committee was carried out.

Songs by Jack Beatty, accompanied by Miss Mabel Krause, were heartily received. William Cory, assistant farm advisor, gave an interesting talk on the status of the foot and mouth disease and the film dealing with the foot and mouth disease, "It Must Not Pass", was shown. The program was concluded with several songs by Dr. H. Collins, who was accompanied by O. Sundquist.

Almond Paste Mayonnaise

To one cupful of Wesson Oil Mayonnaise add two tablespoonfuls of almond paste, softened with one tablespoonful of lemon juice. Use with any simple fruit salad.

Toasted Nut Mayonnaise

To one cupful of Wesson Oil Mayonnaise add one-quarter cupful of finely-chopped, toasted almonds, pecans or filberts, which have been blanched before toasting. Serve with a salad made of firm fruit.

Sauce Tartare

To one cup of Wesson Oil Mayonnaise add one gherkin and one shallot, finely chopped. Also one tablespoonful of lemon juice. Serve cold with fish.

FRENCH DRESSING

French Dressing is the simplest—yet, at the same time, the most sophisticated of all salad dressings.

Six tablespoonfuls of Wesson Oil, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar or lemon juice, one-third teaspoonful of salt, a few shakes of pepper and stir well. Paprika may be added if desired.

It can be made in quantity if desired by merely increasing the amount of the various ingredients used, maintaining the proper proportions of oil and vinegar—one part of vinegar to three parts of Wesson Oil.

When made in quantity this dressing can be kept in a covered jar in the ice box, and is ready for use at any time, merely needing a thorough shaking to break up the oil and blend it with the acid.

This dressing is always ready for use plain, or as a basis for many delicious variations of French Dressing.

HIS BROTHER'S WIFE

by RUDY AYRES
© NEA SERVICE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The marriage of Dolly and Nigel Bretherton proves unhappy. When war is declared, Nigel is glad to enlist. He leaves Dolly under the care of Mary Farnival. Nigel is killed and Dolly marries an old sweetheart and sails for America with him.

When Nigel's brother, David, calls to see Nigel's widow, Mary is ashamed to tell him of Dolly's marriage. David mistakes Mary for his brother's wife and takes her to live at Red Grange with his aunt. Monty Fisher tells David that he knows that Mary is not Nigel's widow and David says he has already found that out.

Monty's sister, Dora, wants to marry David. She is jealous of his attentions to Mary and seeks revenge. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

He tried in vain to comfort her, but he realized what she shut her eyes to—that she had never had a place in David's regard beyond one of ordinary friendship; that she had never been anything more to David than any other woman of his acquaintance.

He went on with his breakfast in silence. Dora dried her eyes viciously.

"You don't care what happens to me. You don't care if I am a miserable old maid all my life."

The description of herself was humorous. Monty smiled in spite of himself.

"Don't be silly! You've only got to look in the glass to scare that boggy away. Why, you might marry almost any man you know."

"I want to marry David," The tears flowed again.

It was not that she had any love for David, but that she always obstinately wanted the thing beyond her reach.

Monty went off to the office with a heavy heart. There were troubles some times ahead, he was sure, and, man-like, he hated trouble. He liked life to be peaceful and smooth sailing. He could gladly put up with monotony to secure peace.

The sight of Evans in the outer office made him think of that mysterious cablegram. He called the young fellow into his room, and told him to shut the door. He indicated the paper which was lying before him on the table.

"Do you know anything about this, Evans?"

The young man flushed.

"No, sir."

It was obviously a lie. For a moment Fisher was nonplussed.

"You are quite sure of that?" he asked again quietly.

This time there was no answer. Fisher looked at him with reassuring eyes.

"You have nothing to be afraid of, Evans," he said kindly. "My sister tells me that you saw this message yesterday, and that she gathered from your manner that you knew something about it. Is that so or not?"

"No, sir; I know nothing."

"Very good. You may go."

The young man went slowly away.

When the door was shut Fisher took down the telephone receiver, and asked for the Red Grange number.

There was some delay in getting connected; and when at last he was told he was through, it was one of the servants who spoke at the other end of the wire.

"Mr. Bretherton is very much engaged, sir, but I will tell him."

"Tell him it is important. My name is Fisher."

There was another delay. Then David's voice, urgent and oddly excited, spoke:

"Is that you Monty? Have you any news for me?"

"News! What do you mean?"

Fisher was mystified.

The answer came impatiently:

"I thought you might have heard of her. I thought perhaps she might have communicated with you."

"She! Who? I don't understand. Who are you talking about?"

There was the faintest hesitation. Then:

"I'm speaking of Mary. She's gone! She left my house last night. If you can come down, Monty—"

"I'll come by the next train."

Fisher slammed up the receiver. CHAPTER XLVII

Not Nigel's Wife!

HE sent a hasty note around to Dora, saying that he was called away on business, and in less than an hour he was speeding on his way back to the Red Grange.

A chauffeur brought the car to meet him. They were all very upset at the house, he explained—Mrs. Nigel was missing.

They could not understand it; they were afraid there had been an accident.

Fisher made no comment. He hardly knew if he were glad or sorry that Mary should so have taken the law into her own hands.

He supposed that it was his recognition of her that had frightened and driven her to take this step. In spite of himself he felt sorry. He could not quite believe in the accusation he himself had made that she was an adventuress. He had always known her as so quiet and unassuming.

David met him at the door. He looked pale and rather stern. The two men shook hands silently. Both were conscious of the curious eyes of the servants.

David led the way to his study, and shut the door.

You may as well tell me anything you know," he said abruptly.

His voice sounded strained. He looked like a man who is keeping an iron hand on snapping nerves.

"I suppose you spoke to her yesterday. She recognized you, of course."

"Of course. I—I said very little, though, and she certainly did not know that I had told you—"

"You told me nothing more than what I already knew."

"As it happens, no."

"And you can suggest nothing? You don't know of any place she would be likely to go to?"

"None at all. Nigel always said she was singularly friendless."

David made no comment, but his hands gripped each other hard behind his back.

Fisher was watching him sympathetically.

"She left no note, no word of explanation."

"Nothing—nothing at all. But her bed had not been slept in when the maid went to call her this morning, and she had gone."

"She can't have gone far, and someone must have seen her."

"The guard at the station did. He spoke to her. She went up by the first train—the seven-ten. She told him she was going to London."

"She may come back this evening."

David turned sharply away. CHAPTER XLVIII

Dolly's Letter

"YOU know as well as I do that she will not come back," David said.

There was a little silence.

"If we could only find Nigel's wife," he went on, with a sort of rage in his voice, "we might get to know the truth of it all! Do you think it would be of any use to advertise for her? I know so little about her. I have even forgotten her name."

"Dolly," said Fisher quickly, and then stopped.

For a moment he stared at David's tall figure and averted face; then he thrust a hand into his pocket, and drew out the folded cablegram. He crossed to where his friend stood.

"What does this mean?" he asked.

David turned. He glanced at the paper carelessly, then with increasing interest.

"Please ask David Bretherton cable me two hundred pounds. Letter explaining follows.—Dolly Durham."

The eyes of the two men met.

"Well?" said Fisher.

David shrugged his shoulders.

"It's all double Dutch to me," he said shortly. "What is the meaning of it? Where did you get it?"

"It came to the office yesterday. That is all I know."

David looked annoyed.

"It's a mistake, I should think. I don't know any woman of that name."

Fisher folded the paper absently.

"Dolly was the name of Nigel's wife," he said quietly.

The two men stared at each other for a moment without speaking.

"I don't know why I think it is she," Fisher said then. "I have no reason at all for supposing so beyond the name; but if I am right, that would explain somewhat why she asks for this money. She would consider it more or less her right. She was that kind of woman."

"But the name Durham, man?"

Fisher laughed cynically.

"Probably she has married again already. I was always expecting to hear something of the kind."

David seemed hardly to be listening. He was pacing up and down the room restlessly.

"Of course, nobody knows the truth of this affair," he said suddenly. "They all believe that Mary is really Nigel's widow. I have not told them anything. I don't wish them to know anything."

"As you please, of course. And if there is anything I can do—"

"You can try and find her for me. You lawyer chaps know the ropes, and I don't."

David's voice changed suddenly. He laid a hand on Fisher's arm with something of the old affectionate manner.

"Find her for me, old fellow. I'd give anything to see the world to have her back again!"

Just for an instant Monty hesitated. His thoughts flew to his sister as he had last seen her, flushed and angry, with the tears in her eyes.

She was nothing to David. If he had believed before that she was, he could no longer doubt the truth now, and suddenly his hand went up to meet his friend's.

"I'll do my best," he said.

At lunch-time Miss Varney appeared. She had evidently been crying very much. Her voice quivered as she appealed to Fisher with tears in her eyes to help them.

"If I only knew that she was safe and well I should not mind so much. But one hears such terrible things nowadays. The poor darling may have lost her memory, or been taken ill, or a hundred and one things."

David smiled rather sadly.

OBITUARY

Edmund Laederich was born July 27, 1850, in New York City, N. Y., and at the age of one year was brought by his mother and elder brother to San Francisco, crossing the Isthmus of Panama on donkeys with Indian guides.

In San Francisco they joined the husband and father, who had preceded them westward in 1849. The parents were natives of France, and pioneers of California.

When nine years of age, Mr. Laederich moved with his parents to Santa Clara county to a farm, now owned by the Winchester estate, where he received his education and with his parents attended the Methodist church, and the children went to Sunday school. At the age of 21, he came to Orange county where he has lived ever since, a kind and loving brother, and beloved by all his friends on account of his cheerful and kindly disposition.

Beside a son, Ernest Edmund Laederich, the decedent leaves three brothers, B. H. of Kansas City; H. A. of San Jose, and W. O. of San Juan, San Benito county, and two sisters, Mrs. M. Nilsson of this city and Mrs. Emily Gobar of San Juan, San Benito county.

Funeral services were held at the Ellis funeral parlors at Orange on Tuesday afternoon, following which Mrs. Nilsson accompanied remains to Santa Clara for interment.

ST. LOUIS, May 23.—A $100,000 foundation fund, to be used primarily for training Boy Scout executives, is to be raised by a national committee headed by Clarence H. Howard of St. Louis, president of the Commonwealth Steel Co. and member of the national executive board of the Boy Scouts.

Howard's appointment was made shortly before adjournment of the fourteenth annual national conference of the scout organization attended by more than 400 nationally known financiers, captains of industry and professional men.

Sentenced to Go To Church Weekly

WASHINGTONVILLE, N. Y., May 23.—Charged in police court in Washingtonville, Orange county, with reckless driving of his automobile, Elmer Knapp, 21, escaped with a suspended sentence, but has been told by Judge J. A. Vandemark that he must go to church at least once a week for two months. He must have proof from the pastor of the church, said the judge, that he attended service. That is the condition upon which sentence was suspended.

Freak Wind Takes Hay Off Trailer

TERRA BELLA, May 23.—Lester McDaniels, employed on the Henry W. Owen place, is of the opinion that a lost cyclone found him as he came toward town with a four-horse team, hauling two wagons loaded with alfalfa hay. About a mile and a half west of here, a real nor'wester swooped down upon the outfit and in the twinkling of an eye the load on the trailer, rack and all, weighing close to two tons, had been lifted from the wagon and landed at one side of the road. McDaniels drove on but later returned for the lost hay.

It is believed that 90,000,000 years have been required for the sea to attain its present saltiness.

About One of the Ingredients of

What Science Says

The Woman's Tonic

SIX CENTURIES OF USE

The principal medicinal plant ingredient, to which much of the therapeutic value of CARDUI is due, was first introduced into medicinal use by Arnoldus Villanovanus, about 1350 A. D., or nearly 600 years ago. Since then, many medical text books have mentioned its use, among others, the following:

Dr. P. A. Matthiolus, of Frankfort, in 1586, wrote: "The plant is greatly esteemed among all nations."

Dr. John Hill, of London, in 1751, wrote: "The great demand for it, on account of its medicinal virtues, occasions its being propagated in all the Gardens about London, where medicinal herbs are raised."

Dr. Johann Schroeder, of Nuremberg, in 1693, wrote: "The herb, when boiled in water or wine and taken, overcomes dizziness, is useful in severe debility, promotes appetite and brings on . . ."

Dr. Lobach, Member of the Physico-Medical Society, Wuerzburg, in a report to his society, in 1858, wrote about "the wonderful results which have made this remedy famous."

Dr. John M. Scudder, of Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1898, wrote: "It will be found valuable in cases of sudden suppression, due to colds . . . It promotes the appetite and gives energy to the digestive organs."

King's American Dispensatory published in Cincinnati, in 1909, says: "It acts well in suppression from colds."

Potter's Cyclopaedia of Botanical Drugs, London, 1911, says: "It acts well in . . . derangements due to colds, etc."

The above quotations from scientific medical writers, show the high opinion held by them as to just one of the ingredients of Cardui, the woman's tonic.

First introduced into common use in this country as a proprietary medicine nearly half a century ago, CARDUI has attained the position of a leading remedy in female ailments and is indicated in many cases of female trouble and for such symptoms as pains, cramps, spasms and other signs of derangement in cases of this kind, when not due to constitutional deformity or that do not require surgical treatment.

Its general action on the system is that of a mild tonic and it is, therefore, also indicated for a run-down condition in general, to assist in promoting appetite, stimulating digestion and toning up the system.

Most druggists carry Cardui in stock, in $1.00 bottles, with full directions for use printed on the label; and every woman who suffers from female ailments, or requires the aid of a good, general, systemic tonic, should try this well-known remedy.

Write for Book or Circular

A Book, in simple language, giving full particulars of the uses of Cardui, with instructions on diet, baths, and other health hints, will be sent to any woman on request.

A Special Circular, for physicians only, giving the formula and describing its ingredients, therapeutic effects and clinical results, will be sent to any physician writing us on his printed letterhead or prescription blank.

sigh of hope long deferred because of the many other insistent calls down the years that seemed more worth while. The distressed wail of the Far East, the awful war cries of the striving nations, the sturdy shout of our own girls and boys of the Y. W. C. A.—the plaintive call of mothers and little children asking "not for charity but for constructive help." To all these and many more we have listened and they have been answered, the latter by our own Ebell Day Nursery, during the past twelve years.

"And so for thirty years our club house has waited.

"But nearer, dearer, sweeter far, we hear singing in the heart beats of each other tonight, the beautiful song of loyalty and love, which has made this club house possible. But in this work we have not been alone for we have had our club husbands and other clubbed husbands behind us—and so we have not been afraid.

"I wish it were possible to tell you how much more man has given us this year—in money, time and encouragement. I'd like to tell of the generous discount as well from the firms with which we have had to deal—for all of which we are extremely grateful and wish publicly to express our thanks and appreciation.

"It takes both men and women to make homes and so, we felt our club house could not become a real club home until they had met and broken bread together beneath our roof tree. We now feel the first step has been taken in making this building a real home where young and old may meet for work and play in all the years that are to come.

"Our Club Husbands," responded to by Mrs. Terry Stephenson, Ebells' president-elect, was handled in Mrs. Stephenson's own delightful manner and with a quiet humor that kept her hearers in a ripple of amusement—quickly hushed lest they miss the point of the next remark.

Going back into written history, Mrs. Stephenson cited a certain popular young woman who established the precedent of offering refreshment to man and also sharing with him the wisdom and good things of life as she became acquainted with them. The wives of Eve, according to the speaker, had come down to all her daughters, just as the qualities connected with Adam had descended to his sons, hence "one of the few sayings of the remarkable man which have come down to his descendants." "The woman tempted me and I did eat," remained as effective today as in the idyllic Garden of Eden days.

Offering temptation to the husband of today, in the form of such a dinner as was last night's, modern clubwomen are merely using the same principles, according to Mrs. Stephenson's amplification of her theme, and that the modern or club-husband was a direct result and development of that Adam who found that his Eve was a sentient, interesting person with a mind of her own, instead of a mere rib, was her final conclusion.

"Our Club Wives"

In responding to the toast, "Our Club Wives," J. P. Baumgartner spoke, in part, as follows:

"That is a toast that might easily have for many of us mere men a somewhat sinister significance. For instance, I fancy that most of us would feel that we had got only our just deserts if these ladies some day should mysteriously metamorphose into literal club wives by taking a club to us and making us pay for this clubhouse. But that will hardly be necessary, for I think we are all a good deal afraid of our wives in a finer way than the silly suggestion contained in my poor pun. We are afraid not to measure up to their very generous estimate of our good qualities as husbands and citizens.

"If I may be permitted to coin a corollary to the phraseology of my toast, I would say that we club husbands—and the men and women of the whole community, for that matter—owe our club wives a debt of gratitude for their courage and confidence, for their perseverance and persistence, for their love and loyalty, for their deep devotion to an ideal, which has made their long, long dream come true. When Sir Christopher Wren was asked for a suggestion for his monument he pointed to the dome of St. Paul's, hanging like a cloud on the horizon, and said, 'That is my monument.' So, for many years—and even for all time in a spiritual sense—this beautiful building will stand as a monument to the public spirit, the altruism, the idealism of our club wives.

Community Asset

"But while the esthetic and spiritual values embodied in the influences that shall here be generated, and hence permeate the whole community, are of prime consideration, we should not ignore the fact that in a mere physical sense this beautiful clubhouse is a community asset of which we all may be proud and for which we should be grateful to our club wives.

"And may I carry this material thought a step further and suggest the possibility that the Ebells society might, with advantage to itself and profit to the community, give more consideration to practical public affairs in the future than it has in the past.

"It may be wholly aside from the purpose and character of the Ebells Society to undertake anything of a political nature. Certainly it would not be proper for the society to engage in anything of a partisan nature. But the pure science of politics, which, in its last analysis, is the science of government—this it might study and teach to great social and economic advantage. I would not, of course, have the society neglect the fine cultural values which it has done so much to create and increase in this community. But if it could, without such neglect, include in its program and activities some measure of inspiration and brilliance of the scene.

BRILLIANT FUNCTION MARKS EBELL CLUBHOUSE OPENING

During the dinner hour a program of musical numbers was rendered by the Clanton Brass quartette and the Santa Ana Symphony Orchestra String trio.

The quartette composed of D. C. Clanton, J. Ramirez, Dr. Harry Hoffman and Richard Taylor, delighted with one of their leader's own compositions, "Lions' Club March" which Mr. Clanton has dedicated to the Santa Ana Lions.

Members of the string trio were Ollie Mae Enlow Matthews, violinist, Edward Burns, cellist and Earl Fraser, pianist. Their numbers were beautifully rendered, as is ever the case with these well known artists, and included "Tango" by Albeniz, "Bolero" by Moszkowsky, an arrangement of "Deep River" by Coleridge-Taylor, "Lady Chloë" by Clough-Leigher.

Service Expeditious

Serving of the elaborate and entirely home-cooked dinner was expeditious by the systematic manner in which Ebells section members were directed by Mrs. Charles L. Mitchell.

The menu offered roast cocktail, olives, salted nuts, roast turkey with dressing, giblet gravy, cranberry jelly, rolls, mashed potatoes, green peas, perfection salad with wafers and cheese, ice cream, home made cake, coffee, and home made candies.

Departing from the usual custom of introducing many after dinner speakers, the hostesses planned only for three very pithy talks, one on "Our Club Home" by Mrs. Crookshank, gracious and lovely in brilliant blue brocade gown, sleeveless and décolleté; "Our Club Wives," by John P. Baumgartner, always an interesting speaker, and "Our Club Husbands" by Mrs. Terry Stephenson.

Humorous Mrs. Terry Stephenson who wore a lovely gown in sand shades with a brilliant scarf.

With Earl Fraser at the piano, the Clanton Brass quartette gave "Quartette from Rigoletto" executed with a perfection little short of marvelous considering the recent birth of the organization.

Maurice Phillips with his delightful personality and his rich voice, forsook his favorite type of songs to give a lovely Spanish melody by De Koven, "Nita Gitana." He was followed by Ebells' own Mrs. Herbert M. Sammis, beautifully gowned in white satin, and who sang in her own delicate manner, "La Partida" by Alvarez. Mrs. Sammis sang in Spanish, heightening the effect, Miss Ruth Armstrong was accompanist as she was for all the vocal numbers. Miss Armstrong's piano work coupled with Mrs. Sammis' exquisite voice, always gives Ebells members and friends extreme pleasure, and last night was no exception.

Dancers Please

Those two lovely maids, the Misses Chalmers Lindsey and Faustina Lucero, came to the club through the courtesy of the Orange County Choral Union. Miss Lindsey, a niece of Judge Ben Lindsey of Denver, is a recent acquisition to the city's talent. Miss Lucero is too well known to need introduction, her grace and talent coupled with a charming personality, having endeared her to the public.

Each gave a graceful solo dance to the rattle of castanets accompanying the lively piano music played by Mr. Fraser. Miss Lindsey wore a vivid red satin dancing frock en princess while Miss Lucero wore a clever little black bodice with accordion pleated skirt in Spanish colors, red and yellow.

The "Toreador Song" from Carmen was Robert Brown's contribution to the Spanish program. Rich and sonorous, his voice rang through the auditorium like a silver trumpet. And to the manifest pleasure of the audience he gave a second number, Sanderson's "Shipmates O'Mine" sung with a world of expression.

Again the Spanish dancers appeared, this time arrayed alike in twin blue silken shawls, heavily embroidered, and red skirts, to dance a graceful duo number, their feet twinkling like fairy lights.

Singer Pleases

Madame Manuela Budrow, the "Spanish Nightingale," lovely in white and with a voice like liquid sunshine, sang to Mr. Fraser's accompaniment, "Seguedilla" from Carmen, followed by one of her own compositions, fascinating foreign but so recently composed as to be nameless and not even in manuscript form. Mr. Fraser's skill in catching the motif, the fire and melody was only second to the artist's rendering.

Madame Budrow was not allowed to leave the platform until she had sung "La Paloma" after which Mr. Clanton brought the program to a close with a trombone number, "Message of Love" by Gounod. This, with an artistry that was a delight to the audience, which realized perhaps for the first time, how exquisitely sweet, trombone music might be. The one regrettable feature of the evening was the fact that those present were denied one programmed pleasure, that of hearing Mrs. F. W. Slabaugh sing. Mrs. Slabaugh was unable to be present on account of illness in her home. It was with keen interest that guests learned they were indebted to Mrs. William Deimling for the arrangement of the program Mrs. Deimling was but one of the scores of willing workers who achieved the evening's success and Mrs. Crookshank took the opportunity to speak of one or two, introducing Mrs. O. M. Robbins, chairman of the building committee, and Mrs. N. A. Beals, who so capably carried out Mrs. Robbins' plans when the latter was forced by illness to relinquish her activities.

Enlivened as the board in Ebells' history by the executive board members were introduced, Mesdames Hervey T. Trueblood, O. M. Robbins, P. R. Reynolds, Charles F. Smith, M. A. Patton and Samuel M. Davis.

Frederick Eley, architect, Samuel Preble and William Bowman, builders, were also commended by the president and asked to rise and be introduced.

The building committee whose efforts were crowned with such a tremendous success, was composed of Mrs. Robbins, chairman; Mrs. Susan M. Rutherford, Mrs. P. A. Robinson, Mrs. N. A. Beals, Mrs. S. W. Stanley, Mrs. Edward M. Nealley and Mrs. J. E. Gowan.

BEWARE LEAKY CHIMNEYS IS WARNING

By HENRY WESTON

The time will soon be here when many will be hitching up their flippers and driving into the country to look up a site upon which to build a new home or to investigate the purchase of one already erected, and the big question about the transaction is—How much do you know about desirable locations, proper settings, building construction in general, plumbing, heating, electric lighting, painting, etc.?

Are you capable of judging the value of a particular piece of property, and if not, whose word are you going to take as the judge?

These statements are not made to instill fear or alarm into the minds of the readers but are to caution them against obligating themselves for the purchase of a building without getting value received. In any event do not be misled by unique little frills or features that may be pleasing to the eye, which, however, may have very little value or stability.

While all of the features should be considered and investigated very thoroughly there is one feature that this article will call particular attention to, namely, the heating.

Large Number of Leaky Houses.

It has been stated on good authority that 60 per cent of all buildings leak like sieves, making the heating problem exceedingly difficult, also that 50 per cent of all chimneys are defective and are responsible for many heating failures.

Every time a heating system is to be installed someone must determine the equipment. How satisfactory it will be depends upon the ability and carelessness of the designer, coupled, of course, with the price one is willing to pay. The construction of the building is of vital importance for the heat units generated are lost through its deficiencies.

The chimney is of equal importance for unless one is able to supply the fuel with sufficient draft, poor combustion will be developed, thereby burning large quantities of fuel and obtaining poor results.

Advantages of Warm Air.

The largest number of heating systems installed in the average homes are warm air, more commonly known as hot air. This form of heating can be installed for ideal results or can be made a miserable failure, which in many cases is due to building construction or chimneys, as above stated, and also due in many cases to the inability of the heating contractor or to an unwillingness to pay a price that will warrant satisfaction.

Warm air is ideal heat when properly installed. It is economical, affords quick heat and is cleaner than other forms of heating. The atmosphere is much easier humidified and the hazard of cracked castings or destruction of walls and furniture by steam or water is avoided. Some of these statements will, no doubt, be refuted by many who have owned or operated in the past (what is termed) a hot air furnace and, of course, the statements are just the opposite of what has been experienced.

A "weather deck" in shipbuilding terms is a deck which has no overhead protection.

Electrical experts have placed the market value of a first-class bolt of lightning at one dollar.

A puckerless persimmon has been developed.

THERE'S ECONOMY IN 'SQUARE TYPE' OF HOUSE. BUILDERS AVER; HERE'S UNUSUAL ONE

Designed by Curtis Service Bureau of Clinton, Iowa

We have long heard the virtues of the "square" house. It does have many good points, but in the majority of cases, good looks cannot be counted as one of them. However, if your family's requirements, your own pocketbook, and your building site call for a square house, it is possible for you to have one that is also good from an architectural standpoint.

Take the house pictured here. Would not anyone single it out from the other houses in the block as having distinctive appearance? Yet it combines all the good features of the popular 24 by 26 floor plan. The chief touches of distinction are the half-timbered hang, batten shutters, and lattices rather than heavy pillars on the front porch. It is built of stucco with hip roof.

The central front entrance admits directly to the living room, which extends across the front of the house. The handsome open stair at the left of the room is a predominating feature. The kitchen is small, and has windows on two sides to insure ventilation and light. The kitchen dresser and work table are built in. There is an adjoining rear entry, where an outside long refrigerator may be placed.

Between the living room and dining room are an attractive pair of French doors having lower panels of wood for about one-fourth of their height. At each side of them in the dining room is a corner china closet built in.

The overhang of the second story gives one foot additional width for the upstairs, which is put to excellent use, increasing the size of the three bedrooms and bath, and affording space for many closets. In the bathroom is a large linen-closet and a small towel closet. Among the three sleeping rooms there are four good closets, a built-in tray case and a built-in dressing table.

RATIFY TREATY TO HALT RUM RUNNING

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The rum treaty between the United States and Great Britain became effective yesterday with the exchange of ratifications at the state department.

The department announced conclusion of an identical treaty with Sweden, which was signed today by Secretary Hughes and the Swedish minister here.

The Swedish treaty is the third of the series to be negotiated, one having been signed with Germany Monday. Another with Holland is in its preliminary stages.

Scale Half Dome At Yosemite Park

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Cal., May 23.—Two Camp Curry guests are today gazing at the world from one of its most distinguished promontories—Half Dome, scaled yesterday for the first time this season by Morris B. Lerner of Pasadena and Mrs. Freeman Covel of San Francisco. They made the steep slope using the steel cables which were replaced yesterday in nine and one-half hours by Albert Kottmayer and Joe Rube, to whom, therefore, the credit of premier Half Dome climbers for the year is due.

15 Million Fish Turned Loose to Fight Mosquitoes

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23.—California has a new home guard—an army of 15,000,000—fish.

They are the volunteer troops of the state Board of Health and have been transported to every section of the state that is mosquito infested and where there is malaria.

This army of super men—from the mosquito viewpoint, will make a mosquito casualty list of one billion and a half each day.

These piscatorial warriors are known as "Gambusia Affinis" and the name sounds the finish of many a winged career.

The fish are constructed physically like a whale, but are no larger than trout minnows.

Girl Suicide As Film Job Denied

HOLLYWOOD, May 23.—Presumably disappointed at her inability to succeed in motion pictures, Cecil Warner, 20, was dead today, her life ended by poison. The girl left a note telling a sister, Mrs. C. R. Reinhardt, said to be stopping at the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, that she was "not in the least bit afraid."

VETERAN JUDGE GIVES FACTS IN HIS CASE

Hon. A. P. Tarbox Tells How He Overcame Stomach Trouble Of Long Standing by Taking Tanlac.

Honorable A. P. Tarbox, distinguished lawyer and judge, residing at 217 West 23rd St., University Place, Neb., lends his name to further the cause of Tanlac, the famous treatment that has proved of such great benefit to him.

"If anybody knows what Tanlac will do," recently said Judge Tarbox, "it is me, for the medicine has kept me on my feet and able to work for the past two years." Judge Tarbox has been a member of the bar since early manhood and has practiced law in Illinois, Nebraska and Oklahoma for more than a half century. He is a charter member of Farragut Post, Lincoln G. A. R., and also prominent in fraternal order circles. Speaking further of his experience with Tanlac, Judge Tarbox said:

"Stomach trouble had been the bane of my existence even before the Civil War. Indigestion such as I had is about the worst enemy a person could have, and it kept getting worse all the time. I simply could not have kept going the past two years of it had not been for Tanlac. It made my weak stomach sound and whole—some, did away with all signs of indigestion and built me up in a way I had thought impossible. "In fact, Tanlac has brought me health, strength and happiness when I was sick and suffering, so I have every reason to give it my unqualified endorsement and praise."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

L. A. HARBOR BOARD LEADER SAYS PORT HERE WILL MORE THAN FULFILL EXPECTATION

Declaring his firm belief that a harbor developed at Newport Beach will more than fulfill all the hopes of the most enthusiastic boosters, C. J. Golden, chairman of the board of the Los Angeles harbor commission, who is said to be directly responsible for a large part of the development work at the great Southland port, last night at a banquet at the Newport Harbor yacht club told guests of the Harbor Realty club that a period of discouragement must be expected by those who are boosting for the great local project.

"Harbors are won only by continued boosting," Golden explained. "At Los Angeles the live wires met many persons who said the time was not yet ripe for developing a harbor. It required a long period of discouragement before these persons realized that they were losing money out of their own pockets every day that work on the great project was delayed. "And you folk in Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties must expect the same opposition. When you finally overcome the so-called conservatives and actually make your harbor dreams a reality, you will find the harbor will actually prove to be of more value than you ever dared predict."

State Wine Tidelands The Los Angeles harbor expert then explained his city's court battles to determine tideland ownership. These disputes, he said, were not settled until after much litigation the tidelands were won by the state, which soon passed legislation to give the land desired to the city of Los Angeles.

As a member of the board of the harbor commission, Golden said, "I am willing to state that I do not expect to see the time when Los Angeles harbor will pay dividends to the city. The profits are to go to the people of Southern California in the form of lower prices of all commodities that are shipped by water.

"Orange county will receive no dividends from a harbor here, but the individuals in this and adjoining counties will participate in great savings because of lower transportation rates.

"Did you know that it costs less to ship oil well and mine supplies by water from Los Angeles to Philadelphia than by rail from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia?"

Cites Figures "It costs 75 cents to ship a ton of sand for glassmaking more than 6000 miles from Belgium to Los Angeles harbor, and 40 cents on a low railroad rate ten miles further to a glass factory near Wilmington.

"Doesn't this prove to you people that you could save millions of dollars by having a harbor at your own door?"

"A great wealth in California is in these idle lands. I think 95 per cent of Orange county will be planted in fruits, not citrus, perhaps, but fruits which require less water. A harbor at Newport, then, will make it possible to sell these fruits at low prices to every part of the world.

"An enterprising fish industry, I understand, can easily be developed around here. Los Angeles gets immense returns from sending canned fish to the rest of the world. And China has a great demand for kerosene, a by-product of your oil fields, which could be shipped across the Pacific much cheaper than by rail through our own country, which is progressing beyond the oil lamp period.

"Newport has six miles of harbor frontage. Some of the best harbors in the world have no greater frontage than this. Everything in Our Favor Newport's advantage in having a silt bottom makes it cheaper for harbor construction—dredging is cheaper and the depth holds without filling in at every change of the tide. The formation here is ideal for the foundation of permanent piers. Everything is in your favor for a great natural harbor at the lowest cost.

"The back country to feed and be fed by harbors at San Diego, Newport and Los Angeles is as great as the territory back of San Francisco, Portland and Seattle, and our back country down here is by far the fastest growing territory.

"Hydro-electric power is 50 per cent cheaper here than in Chicago and 25 per cent cheaper than any other place in the country. If we develop our hydro-electric power and transportation facilities, big industries will be clamoring for sites in this part of the country and we shall grow by leaps and bounds.

"With these developments, my opinion is that prosperity here will be great."

Golden closed his address with a tribute to the real estate men, declaring that they are the ones who have been giving this country the best advertising and they are the ones who get behind all of the big industrial projects.

Messans Entertain Mr. and Mrs. Clay Stearns of Costa Mesa entertained the harbor boosters with several clever dancing and piano skits that won several encores.

Stanley Clem, vice-president of the Santa Ana Junior Chamber of Commerce, led the live wires in a song entitled, "Yes, We Got No Damn Knockers." Dr. C. G. Houston, president of the Harbor Chamber of Commerce, then spoke on the many ways in which Los Angeles and Orange County harbors will be of benefit to each other.

Harry Welch, secretary of the Harbor Chamber, told of harbor advertising plans now being considered, and he presented a regatta picture from Newport business men to officials of the Harbor Yacht club.

YOUTH HELD AS BIGAMIST TO FACE COURT

Whether Sterling Eckert, 22, the erstwhile James Kelly, still depends upon fortune tellers for his legal advice, as he says he did when he took pretty Iris Dixon, 18, of Brea, for his third wife, without lawfully dismissing Nos. 1 and 2, was today listed by local court attaches as one of the questions to be answered at the scheduled preliminary hearing of Eckert here tomorrow.

Another question that would probably be answered, it was thought, when Eckert comes before Justice Jack Landel on a bigamy charge at 10 a. m. Saturday, was whether Gene Dixon, of Brea, brother of Mrs. "Kelly" No. 3, forcibly abducted his sister from her home with "Kelly" in Seattle, or was voluntarily accompanied by the girl. "Kelly" says she was kidnapped.

In the event that Kelly fights the charge that has been brought against him as the result of his asserted multiple marriages, all of these interesting questions were expected to be answered. If he yields to prosecution and waives preliminary examination, as has been intimated to be probable, the "kidnaping" charge will probably not be aired, court attaches said. However, they agreed, the youth's attitude toward fortune tellers would be revealed, in either case, either by his own statements, or by his preparations for defense.

Following his arrest, when he had followed his third bride from Seattle to her home in Brea, where she went with her brother after the asserted "kidnaping" Eckert told Deputy District Attorney D. G. Wettlin that he was sure he had not committed bigamy because the fortune tellers told him his previous marriages had been annulled.

Fortune Tellers "Undone." He also said that the fortune tellers told him that there would be no "law trouble," so he had confidently followed his bride back to Brea, even though warned that he would be arrested if he did so.

This faith in the fortune tellers was further revealed in a letter written by Eckert in Seattle to "Mrs. Iris Kelly" in Brea, after her brother had taken her home. "One fortune teller," the letter read, "told me that Betty (wife No. 2) had secured a divorce in a small town near a large city, but couldn't

Missionary Here Knew Man Killed By Pekin Bandits

Jay Dinsmore, whose death at the hands of Chinese bandits was reported in yesterday's Register in a dispatch from Pekin, China, was a friend of F. M. Toothaker, a missionary in China, who is here as a guest at the home of F. W. Wieseman, 2025 North Broadway.

The dead man was an agent of the China Import and Export Lumber company, 40 years of age and unmarried.

A missionary for the First Methodist Episcopal church, Toothaker has been located at Yen Ping, and it was there that he met Dinsmore. According to the missionary, Dinsmore was a strong supporter of missionary work in China and had availed himself of the medical service at dispensaries maintained in China by the church organization.

Records of the district attorney's office, secured in an investigation of the case, show that Eckert was first married, under his real name, to Jean Leiboldt, 18, in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. The second marriage, it is shown, took place in Los Angeles April 25, 1923, when he was alleged to have married Elizabeth Pallas Ruth, 17. The girl's parents, it was said, immediately separated them. Eckert married the girl under the name of Kelly. Then, apparently assured by the fortune tellers that his second wife had somehow, somewhere, secured a divorce, he took his third plunge into matrimony. On December 4, 1923, he married Iris Margaret Dixon, of Brea, in Santa Ana. Again he used the name Kelly.

Shortly after their marriage, the couple moved to Seattle where they lived until Gene Dixon, the girl's brother, learned of "Kelly's" prior matrimonial experiences. He went to Seattle and brought his sister home. Kelly, secure in his faith in fortune tellers, disregarded his brother-in-law's warning and followed, only to fall into "law trouble."

According to the district attorney's office, there is no record of any divorce annulment of Eckert's marriages. Mrs. Betty "Kelly," wife No. 2, is said to be living at 202 Beach with her baby. The whereabouts of wife No. 1 are not known here.

Toothaker was a resident of Santa Ana prior to his removal to China to take up missionary work. His wife was Miss Bossie Hanning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Hanning, who formerly owned and lived on the ranch property at the northwest corner of Grande avenue and East Fourth street. The Santa Ana laundry is now located on a part of what was the Hanning holdings. Mr. and Mrs. Hanning now are residents of Pasadena, where Mr. and Mrs. Toothaker are passing part of their time while in the United States on furlough.

WILBUR CLAIMS NAVY BELOW PACT RATIO

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Secretary of the Navy Wilbur's report declaring that the United States Navy has fallen a full point below the Washington treaty ratio will be laid before the house today.

It is expected that the report will give impetus to the drive being made by the house naval affairs committee for passage of the bill appropriating $150,000,000 for a five year construction program to restore the navy's full strength.

The report informed the house of the deficiency of the navy as follows:

- 1—Thirteen of our first line eighteen ships are neither modern nor of the highest efficiency. They restore the navy's full strength.
- 2—In cruisers the United States rates third after Great Britain and Japan with a ratio of 5-3-1.
- 3—Twenty-one of our submarines are out of commission.
- 4—We have no submarines capable of maneuvering with the fleet.
- 5—The United States is far ahead in destroyers, though we lack fleet leaders.
- 6—Great Britain is building two battleships; we are building none.
- 7—Great Britain is building nine light cruisers; Japan twelve; France five; United States, two.

ORANGE STUDENTS TO VISIT HARBOR

ORANGE, May 23.—It has been the custom, since the class of 1917, for the members of the senior class of the Orange union high school to have an "O" day, when all the seniors, dressed in outlandish costumes, take a day off from school and go up to the "O" on the hill above Orange and clean it off. "O" day, or Ruble day, is an event looked forward to by the students from their freshmen days.

For seven years this custom has been kept up, but this year is to prove the first exception. On account of the hoof and mouth disease the students will not be allowed to go upon the hill where the "O" is located. This fact was a great disappointment to the seniors, and it was hoped at first that the ban might be lifted, but it was announced yesterday by the class president, Lester Peck, that the class could not go.

It was finally decided that some other trip should take the place of cleaning the "O," and as the Newport harbor committee had already extended an invitation to the senior class to go and look over the new harbor, the class has accepted the invitation. Monday, May 26 is the day set for the trip. The students will go down to Newport and look over the bay in the morning, return to Orange before noon, take lunches, and go to the Orange county park for the remainder of the day.

Blames Dismal Days for Crime Gain in London

LONDON, May 23.—There has been an epidemic of burglaries and housebreaking during these dismal, foggy days, and something like $50,000 worth of property has been lost in London during the past month. Police officials always have trouble at this time of the year because of shady rascals migrating up to town to "earn a living" during the winter months.

For many years past special police have been put on the streets during the first days of November to counter the efforts of these gangs, but so far they have not entirely checked their efforts, although many burglaries have been frustrated.

TWO RESIDENTS OF EL TORO ARE TAKEN

EL TORO, May 23.—Death summoned two of El Toro's respected citizens this week, Juan Gless on Tuesday morning, and twenty-four hours later Francis M. Gordon.

Juan Gless had lived in this vicinity nearly forty years. Coming here when mustard grew as high as a man's head and sheep grazed over the hillsides, he pioneered as a tender of sheep until the country began to develop into a grain and orchard section. He then took up these later occupations and for many years he was one of the most successful men in this community.

He had not been so well during the past few years, but was not thought seriously ill. He retired in his usual health late Monday night, but was stricken in the early morning hours, and passed away before medical aid could be summoned. He is survived by his widow, one son, John, of this city, and a daughter, Mrs. Marcel Burgard of Los Angeles. Impressive services were held Thursday morning at the Catholic mission, with burial in the San Juan cemetery.

Francis M. Gordon had been a resident of El Toro for about ten years. He owned the pool hall and barber shop, up until three years ago, when he was forced to give up the indoor work by failing health. Since that time he has been living with his wife, a garden and fruit trees on his property. He was always congenial, and well liked by everyone. About two months ago he was seized with asthma, a malady which had not bothered him for years. Mr. Gordon did not complain of anything unusual on Tuesday, but just after midnight, quietly slept in peace. Mrs. Cynthia Gordon, the widow, Mrs. Anna Lopizich, a daughter, and Miles Gordon, a son, of Sioux City, Iowa, survive. Miles Gordon is now on his way here. Services will be held in Santa Ana, at two o'clock, Saturday afternoon, following the son's arrival.

The meeting of the Woman's club, scheduled for Wednesday afternoon, was postponed until a later date, on account of the death of F. A. Gordon, husband and father of two club members.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Bennett motored to Santa Ana on business Tuesday.

Mrs. Eugene Ahern, of Tustin, visited in El Toro Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleofas Romero went to Santa Ana Tuesday, to be gone several weeks.

Mrs. Milo Stevens is ill in the Anaheim sanitarium.

Mrs. Charlene, Mae and Stella Swartz attended the Senior play at San Juan Capistrano high school, Wednesday evening.

The reason is a small one—just an eight pound daughter, born to Lloyd's wife, Mildred Davis, his former leading woman.

'LIGHTNIN' IS DECLARED GEM OF PURE RAY

BY EDDIE WEST

"Lightnin'," the most brilliant gem of the spoken stage, the most popular success of any season and the play that broke all world records, lives up to the innumerable good things that have been told of it.

"Lightnin'" struck Santa Ana last night—at the Yost theater—and it will be there, for the last time, again tonight.

Don't miss it.

That may be free advertising. The reviewer doesn't care if it is; in fact, wants it to be. "Lightnin'" deserves it. The writer doubts if any play, anywhere, anytime and of any kind, deserves it more. Certainly, no more pleasing production ever has come to this city.

The house that viewed this marvelous comedy last night was not as large as it should have been. There are plenty of splendid seats available for tonight and the theatergoer who misses "Lightnin'" will be sorry.

"Lightnin'" is a play remarkably true in its tone and fine in its appeal, with an abundance of humor of the clean sort. Touching the heart with many a show of tender feeling, this famous comedy is woven around a character as gentle and lovable as has graced the American stage since the days of Jefferson's Rip Van Winkle.

In "Lightnin'" Bill Jones, the character from which the comedy takes its title, the authors, Frank Bacon and Winchell Smith, have created a stage portrait that will live in the memory of theatergoers for years to come.

"Lightnin'" is a veteran of the Civil war, a country loafer of the good old American kind, an unconscionable braggart, and the owner of a large and lasting thirst. He is the sort of man the whole world loves because of his faults; his lying, his misrepresentations, his ability to tell the tallest kind of a story, his shiftlessness, are all reprehensible faults in themselves and in the majority of people, but in old Bill Jones they are simply the weaknesses of a human being who wins the love and sympathy of all who know him. Most of us love those friends who have normal failings, and for this reason everyone who sees Lightnin' Bill on the stage is going to love him.

Through his faults, Lightnin' works himself into trouble that culminates in the divorce court, and also through these same faults works himself out of his troubles, and yet there is no manifestation of reform. The final curtain falls on the same Lightnin' that the first act introduces.

Percy Pollock, chosen by the late Frank Bacon just before his death to be his successor in the famous role he created and first played in New York, scored the greatest of personal triumphs as "Lightnin' Bill." Bacon, you feel, surely could have done no better.

The rest of the large cast, and by the way, virtually the original players that opened in "Lightnin'" six years ago, is splendidly well balanced. Jane Oaker, as Margaret Davis, a prospective divorcee serving "time" at Lightnin's hotel prior to her divorce case hearing, proved immensely popular with the local audience. Jason Robards as John Marvin, Ann Merrick as Mildred Buckley and Jessie Pringle as Mrs. Jones deserve unbounded praise.

scores the greatest of triumphs as Lightnin' Bill Jones in "Lightnin'" the famous record-breaking comedy that will be seen for the last time tonight at the Yost theater here.

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS

YOST—"Lightnin'" Frank Bacon and Winchell Smith's record-breaking comedy of the legitimate stage, with Percy Pollock and thirteen of the original New York cast.

TEMPLE—"Manslaughter" with Thomas Meighan

WEST END—"Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," with Mary Pickford.

WALKER—"40-Horse Hawkins" with Edward ("Hoot") Gibson.

"HOOT" GIBSON'S LATEST AT WALKER'S

Hoot Gibson's latest production, "40-Horse Hawkins," which shows at Walker's tonight, is said to contain more laughs than any in which Hoot has appeared for a long time. It tells the troubles of a man who is the entire staff of a village opera house and hotels; peeks back into the days of real melodrama, and then takes the hero to New York, where he searches for the maiden he loves. Incidentally, he saves a theatrical production as he blunders into happiness.

GIANT STALLION IN SCENE OF "MASLAUGHTER"

Beer wagons and big horses went out of fashion at the same time, but in spite of this Cecil B. DeMille discovered a huge black stallion which serves as a mount for Thomas Meighan in the Roman bacchanal episode of "Manslaughter," now showing at the Temple.

Thanks to the equipment and costume, rider and horse appear to be approximately sixteen feet high on the screen. Meighan wears a barbaric costume supporting an eagle which gives him many inches of height added to his own full six feet.

Mounted on his great beast, Mr. Meighan heads a horde of barbarians into the midst of a Roman bacchanal at which Leatrice Joy appears as the hostess.

Meighan and Miss Joy with Lois Wilson, head a notable cast.

Sunset Beach News

SUNSET BEACH, May 23.—Among those who tried to catch grunion Tuesday evening at Sunset Beach were Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Kitzmiller of Artesia who entertained at their beach cottage on Ocean Front, Mr. and Mrs. A. Frampton, Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Frampton, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hurley, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Garrison, Cleve Johnson, Mrs. O'Halloston and daughter from Kansas, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Kitzmiller and children, who recently moved to South Pasadena from Sunset Beach.

The official fisherman of the party was A. E. Frampton. A bonfire and weenie supper completed the night.

The Carefree club met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. J. A. White. Radio music, sewing and visiting filled the afternoon with enjoyment. The next meeting will be in two weeks, June 3rd, at Mrs. Robert Gilcrest's home.

All Sunset Beach women are asked to come and enjoy this little neighborhood club. There are no dues or obligations.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Marshall of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Wall and Carolyn of Los Angeles, Mrs. J. Teasdale, formerly of Toronto, Canada, Mr. Wallace, Mr. Blackman, C. H. Elgar Jr. of Los Angeles were guests of Mrs. C. H. Elgar of Sunset Tuesday.

The party motored from Los Angeles with a hamper full of buns, weiners and coffee, expecting to take it home after supper full to overflowing with grunion, but declare "there ain't no such animal," but all voted the trip worth while for the wonderful view by moonlight and camping off the ocean, lagoon and the vista of fairland presented by the row of lights of Seal Beach, Long Beach, Wilmington and Signal Hill.

Among the new ones is the large building on the highway of Thos. Spurgeon, living rooms over a double garage. The five room house of Wallace McNally of Pasadena, Mr. Oger has two garages and rooms over for living quarters. Mr. P. Snyder has completed his restaurant building on the highway and the paint and brush is seen on the McMickle, Glover and other homes while several new bulkheads have been built. Notable among them B. D. Davey's and the cement one in front of Mr. Killian's lots, while a very neat appearing garage with house-keeping facilities has been erected on the rear of his lot by Attorney Fitzpatrick of Los Angeles who is now renting the "Sparling House."

Material is on the ground for a new roadbed to the Pacific Electric line and new poles are partly up and other ready for the power service to Sunset Beach. The P. E. line plans very soon to run local cars from Huntington Beach to Long Beach through Sunset Beach, giving a schedule that will enable many to live here and attend their work at Long Beach and Signal Hill by car.

BRILIN, May 23.—In order to go suitably attired to the stylish Berlin "Ragged Ball," a wealthy banker here and his family put on their oldest clothes, torn appropriately for the occasion. In addition to being very cunning, the fox is also a clever mimic. He can bleat like a lamb, mew like a cat, and he can even imitate the squeal of a pig. This ability to mimic is often made use of in various ways by the fox when hunting for food.

Practical Notes On S. S. Lesson

BY CAL OGBURN

LESSON FOR MAY 25, Jer. 26:18-16, JEREMIAH AND THE BABY-LONIAN CRISIS

"The priests and the prophets and all the people laid hold on him, saying, Thou shalt surely die."

V. 8.

No more hopeless, thankless task ever fell to the lot of any man than to Jeremiah. It was that of saving his nation from destruction. He was the son of Hilkiah a priest who lived at Anathoth a village not far from Jerusalem. By birth-right Jeremiah was himself a priest, though there is no record of his ever having performed any priestly duty. He seems rather to have given up the priestly office for the prophetic calling, which he followed assiduously for more than forty years.

Jeremiah was a "reformer"—who never reformed anybody or anything. Nothing uncommon about that. There have been a great many such "trail-blazers," and agitators. And this was nothing to their discredit. Judah was in a deplorable condition—politically, economically, morally, religiously—when Jeremiah began his work. And the nation went steadily from bad to worse, in spite of all that he could do. His protests made him unpopular with all classes. People resent any interference with their "personal liberty." It has always been so. There is no obstacle so great to law enforcement today. The people who heard Jeremiah refused to regard God's will as supreme. It curtailed their liberty—which, to them, was only another name for license. It does that now.

Jeremiah had a great many successors. There are preachers today who are barely tolerated, because they have dared to be outspoken against some "fashionable folly" or common sin among the "leading members" of their congregation. From the usual viewpoint, Jeremiah accomplished nothing. And these preachers are also like him in that respect. His efforts all ended alike—in failure. That being so, was it worth while "was it his duty—to continue, as he did?"

And this raises a series of questions concerning the work of the preacher who faithfully, but unsuccessfully, admonishes, warns, and reproves his congregation. Shall he go on, when, at great cost to himself, there are no favorable results? Jeremiah was threatened to death. The preacher who pleads with his people for reformation of life and conduct also is often menaced for having given offense. "Starve him out. Withhold your moral and financial support. Take the bread out of his mouth. Let his wife and children suffer. Do not attend the services of the church. Kill him! Break his heart. Crush his courage. Destroy his influence. Take away his independence of thought. Make of him a mere puppet. Teach him that he is the mouth-piece of those who pay his salary. Deny to him the right of free speech. If he will not perform the menial services of a hireling, then demand his resignation."

Oh, faithful "Jeremiah"! there are many of your calling to give to you their sympathy. They know from bitter experience the hard lot that has fallen to you. But, "Jeremiah," you are too much of a man to "take orders" from the "godless church-members" who would "own" you, either by threats or bribery. Jeremiah never forgot that he was a prophet by God's appointment. Do not lose sight of the fact that God has ordained you a preacher of righteousness. Make no compromises.

"I am in your hand . . . If ye put me to death, ye will bring innocent blood upon yourselves . . . for of a truth Jehovah hath sent me unto you to speak all these words in your ears."—vs. 14, 15.

Every man who stands for any moral reform whatsoever, be he preacher, editor, statesman, or the man without recognized title or position, should make himself familiar with these daring words of Jeremiah. Facing his enemies—and death—Jeremiah boldly repeated what he had brought down their wrath upon him. His was moral courage of the highest order. He offers neither "explanation" nor apology. They might kill him, as they had planned to do, but, even to save his life, he would not retract or retract a single word.

"But Jeremiah accomplished nothing." He did not. No man ever lived in vain who did God's bidding. True, Judah would not repent. The kingdom came to a suicidal end. The people were carried away into Babylonian captivity. Jeremiah was compelled by some of the Jews to go with them into Egypt, where, not only the ungodly people of his day, but the ungodly people of the future, would find him. He died in Egypt but the Egyptians also were compelled to listen to his warnings of impending doom. (Jer. chs. 43 and 44.)

"This is what you want to notice. It was after his death that Jeremiah won his victory. His soul lived on. He became one of the greatest treasures of the Hebrew people. His writings were included in their sacred literature, and he was held by subsequent generations to be one of the greatest prophets who ever came in the name of God. When Jesus came and said, 'Who do men say that I am?' one reply was that he was Jeremiah risen from the dead. What a tribute to the prophet whom their fathers had stoned to death!"

"Then said the princes and all the people unto the priests and the prophets: This man is not worthy of death; for he hath spoken to us in the name of Jehovah our God."

The man who stands for what God wants done will not always stand alone. Every reformer has had the help of men of power and influence—in time. Maybe not till after he had fought and—seemingly—lost many a battle with the forces of unrighteousness. The early advocates of temperance reform were "a lonesome lot." Those who first, from smoky soap boxes and on vacant "sand lots," advocated the initiative, referendum and recall were a long, long time in gaining the attention of "influential" newspapers and political parties—who "stole their thunder" and got the credit for the laws enacted to put these wise principles

U. S. AS WHOLE SHOWING LOSS IN BUILDING

Southern California continues to grow, and perhaps the principal reason for this constant development lies in the fact that business slumps are almost unknown in this section of the country, according to the monthly building survey of S. W. Straus and company, issued here today.

Reports of the volume of building permits and plans filed in April in important cities and towns throughout the entire nation, it was added, give evidence of the approach of activities which will more adequately reflect normal demand.

April totals in 333 cities were $337,822,461 compared with $361,849,492 in April, 1923, a loss of $24,027,031 or 7 per cent, according to the survey. With the culmination of New York, where the volume of plans filed was excessive, the country as a whole lost nearly 12 per cent compared with April, 1923.

This exhibit of losses is in sharp contrast with 1923 conditions, for April of that year showed a gain over 1922 of more than 50 per cent. Since building permits and plans filed with the building departments in substantially all centers of importance in the United States comprise an infallible indication of what may be expected in the industry as a whole, the curve of activities may be expected now to show a downward tendency as compared with 1923, though this may not affect the "stabilized" sections of California, the report predicted.

However, it should be borne in mind, the survey points out, that large volumes of building work are now in progress and much still is pending. Up to May 1 the total volume of plans filed and permits issued this year in the twenty-five most important cities (from a building standpoint) was $927,000,000, which compares with $849,000,000 in the same cities for the same period in 1923, and with $562,000,000 in 1922. The amount of pending construction on May 1 this year was substantially 9 per cent greater than on May 1, 1922, judged from the standpoint of contemplated construction officially declared.

April, 1924, in these twenty-five leading cities accounted for pending construction of $204,000,000 as compared with $140,000,000 for the same month 1922.

The April, 1924, loss, therefore, would seem to indicate only a change in tendencies—the dawn of a new era of more normal, substantial and better stabilized conditions throughout the industry, than has existed during the recent periods when the dangers of a too great expansion have been apparent.

The general tendency of labor during the month of April was toward higher wages, the Straus survey reveals. In more than fifty cities definite increases were granted to members of the various crafts. With a general slowing up of business in many lines of industry, it was not apparent during April that these conditions made for lower labor costs in building, although there was a distinct softening in the prices of lumber and structural steel material. While the declines were not especially great excepting in the cases of new grades of lumber, they manifested themselves in all markets. Other building material showed practically no changes with the exception of cement, sand and gravel which declined slightly in New York, Chicago and Milwaukee.

WOMAN IN LOVE CASE KILLING BARES GRIEF

WHITTIER, Calif., May 23.—"It is the woman who pays." Mrs. H. C. Rentz, 24, and very pretty, says so and she knows because, just now, she is paying.

Her husband, grocery clerk, shot and killed her lover, Louis Wieble, in the Rentz home when, unexpectedly returning there, he found Wieble under the bed.

"It is the woman who pays," Mrs. Rentz sat in her four room home today, alone with her little daughter, aged 5. She had but a short time before returned from the Los Angeles sheriff's office, where she was questioned.

into practice! Woman suffrage "suffered" many years of ridicule before justice prevailed over prejudice. If you are "a latter-day Jeremiah," be glad that you are in such heroic company.

about the tragedy. Exclusively to the United Press she told her story—an age old narration, ever new. The story of the triangle.

Married in Texas

Back down in Texas six years ago, she said, she met and was wooed by Rentz. He seemed brilliant and made a fascinating lover. They were married and a year later the baby was born.

They came to Whittier, and things changed. Mrs. Rentz passed swiftly over alleged cruelties on the part of her husband, but neighbors who came in interpolated, declaring he had subjected her to many indignities such as pointing revolvers at her, and that she had only stood these because of the child.

Regardless of the truth or falsity of these charges by the neighbors, young Mrs. Rentz loved Louis Wieble. She began loving him not long after the dashing young fellow became a friend of the Rentz family.

Wieble was madly in love with her, and repeatedly begged her to divorce Rentz and marry him, promising to be a good husband and a good father to the baby girl.

"Mr. Rentz was jealous of everyone who came to the house," said the wife, between tears.

"He finally forbade Louis to come here at all. But Louis came. I was to blame for letting him, I suppose. But a woman does like to be loved, and Louis was the best kind of a man."

In Murphy Memorial hospital, where Constable Way took the weeping girl to the bedside of her husband's dying victim, Wieble struggled to sit up, cast his arms around her and kissed her again and again.

"If you die, I will leave him," she declared.

And Wieble died.

What Mrs. Rentz will do now, she does not say.

"Louis came to see me Monday to tell me he was going to Los Angeles to work," she explained. "The baby was in kindergarten. We were sitting here on the lounge when I saw my husband coming." Here she shuddered. "I told Louis to hide and he did."

Fired Two Shots

"They say my husband tried to kill me first. I don't know. I know he fired once before he shot Louis." She pointed to a bullet hole in the wall. "He did not tell me whether he aimed that first shot at me.

We agreed to keep it all a secret and Louis was to say he shot himself by accident, but when they told him at the hospital he was going to die, he told the truth.

"And now he is gone. He loved me. My husband lives—"

Her voice broke into sobs as the little girl put her head into the young mother's lap.

"A woman wants to be happy," she concluded, "but it's always the woman who pays. I suppose my husband will get out of this under the unwritten law. But I am the woman; I must pay."

FULLERTON HAS ANNEXATION OF CONNECTION ON SEWER NEW AREA IS APPROVED

FULLERTON, May 23.—The Fullerton section of the joint outfall sewer constructed for this city and the cities of Anaheim, Orange and Santa Ana has been cut in and this community now has a sewerage outlet direct to the ocean.

The main portion of the local system had been completed some time together with lateral lines to serve the southern sections of the city, but delay had been experienced in linking up owing to sand, washed down by the heavy rains, having to be cleaned out of the mains before making the final connections.

The cities of Anaheim and Santa Ana were connected up several weeks ago. The city of Orange is expected to be ready at an early date to cut in and thus complete the new chain of sewerage facilities.

Owing to heavy rains last week, when a portion of the equipment was washed away by the waves construction of the ocean end of the outfall has again been delayed. There is still about 200 feet of the actual outlet to be completed. The last section of the outfall extends some 650 feet out to sea at high tide.

Steps have been taken for participation by Placentia in the joint system of an ownership basis. The sanitary district which has been formed for that purpose will construct its own line to link up with the main outfall and pay a pro rata of the completed trunk.

EL MODENA, May 23. — C. E.

of an ordinance by the city council yesterday afternoon, approving details in connection with the recent election, the official exclusion of the West Orange annexation area, comprising about 100 acres, within the corporate limits of Orange today was not more than thirty days distant, it was indicated.

A certified copy of the ordinance is to be forwarded to Secretary of State Jordan today by City Clerk Cal D. Lester. Providing no legal flaws are discovered, the secretary will then give his approval, bringing the annexation district officially within the city. The process, it was believed here, will require about thirty days.

The 100-acre district was voted into the city by an overwhelming majority at the recent election held in that territory. Previously, property owners in that section signed a petition requesting that the city council call for a vote on the proposition. The petition bore the signatures of a large majority of the residents, who recognized the advantages to their property from coming into the city.

The only other important matter confronting the municipal solons yesterday was the plan to open North Cypress street north to Rose avenue. The street opening was petitioned by property owners, who stated that their land would benefit by the improvement.

JUNIOR C. OF C. BOOSTER PLAN TOLD LIONS

A program of enthusiasm directed in the form of co-ordinated efforts of the luncheon clubs and the Junior Chamber of Commerce to improve and develop Santa Ana, was favorably received at the weekly luncheon of the Lions club held at St. Ann's Inn.

L. R. Crawford, president of the Junior Chamber, on being tendered the guest, said:

"The young men of Santa Ana are banded together for the purpose of discussing ways and means for assisting in the growth and development of the city. Enterprise is the biggest thing entering into the building of the city."

"Completion of Newport harbor is essential to the full development of Orange county along industrial lines.

Boosts for Harbor. "It is the purpose of our membership to study the harbor and to formulate plans for hastening its development. We also purpose to assist in every way possible the development of individuals for the port and for Santa Ana."

"For the purpose of acquainting our membership with civic conditions we are organizing classes for study and discussion of various departments of city activities. Instruction will be under competent direction. Our trend is to self education of the members on important civic problems as well as hastening for our community."

"Good-fellowship also is featured in our activities."

Two Bodies Interlocked. The Junior and Senior Chambers are interlocked, by each having representation on the board of directors, Crawford said, adding that with the two organizations, Santa Ana today had a force never before in evidence here for co-operative promotion of city betterment.

Roy King, chairman, Dr. Elliott Rowland and Ray Canterbury had charge of the Lions' program, which was featured by a short entertainment given by members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Norman Henderson, introduced as second vice president of the Junior Chamber, led a rousing yell. Stanley Clem, first vice president, was also introduced. Joe Peterson won much applause with two dramatic recitations. R. R. Miller, president of the Kiwanis club, who was a guest, declared that the Junior organization offered an avenue for further co-operation in assuring the success of many important projects here.

JAPAN HESITATES AT FULL SUFFRAGE

NEW YORK, May 23.—Japanese elections, which will determine whether or not the so-called "peers' government" is to continue to rule in Tokyo, will be held this month. The result will be momentous in Japan's history. If the present administration is supported, it will mean the Japanese voters have decided against full parliamentary government.

Viscount Kiyoura, the prime minister, represents the old-time rule. He tried to control parliament without a majority in the lower house, but with the support of the peers. Failing in this effort, a new conservative party, called the Seiyuhon, was organized to back Kiyoura, and general elections were then ordered. Kiyoura hopes to come back into power by the aid of the Seiyuhon, holding the balance of power in the diet, and so able to further the interest of personal government.

Objections to extending the principles of democracy in Japan are based on fears of the elder statesmen that the average Japanese citizen does not take the responsibilities of government seriously. The feeling of paternalism is strong. It is curious that this attitude should find its chief representative in Viscount Kiyoura, for he is wholly a product of democracy. He began life so poor and of so low rank that he changed his name in order to get an entirely fresh start. By hard work he rose through various grades to become the head of the state.

The house in St. Louis in which Gen. U. S. Grant was married and lived for a time is to be preserved as a memorial to the soldier-president.

One question that can not be laid upon the table until it is solved is the dinner question. —Peek's Oblige-o-grams.

We'll help you solve it if the finest meats that were ever apportioned to a pleased public plus a merchandising service of dispatch and courtesy will help you.

Bandit Is Slain After Bold Raid On Canada Bank

WINNIPEG, Man., May 23.—A bandit missed his guess here and is dead. In possession of $2000 in currency, all the money in sight at the Bank of Montreal branch, Portage avenue, he was shot dead by policemen.

At the noon hour he entered the branch. A man was just leaving and as the bandit saw him he pulled two guns and ordered the customer to "beat it." He then poked the guns in front of the teller, scooped up the money and fled. In the meantime, the man who was ordered away telephoned the police. When the bandit left the bank there was a hue and cry in which the policemen led. They opened fire and riddled the fleeing man with bullets.

LARGER WATER PIPES SHOW CITY GROWTH

The development of Santa Ana is reflected in the activity of the water department. Walter Wray, city water superintendent, stated today. It has become necessary for the city to replace two-inch water mains in many residential districts with four-inch pipes, Wray explained.

A crew of men soon will lay a four-inch main along West Second street from Olive to Artesia street, and completion of this work will be followed by the paving of second street from Baker street to Artesia. The paving contract already has been awarded the firm of Wells and Bressler.

Wray also announced today that the water main has been finished on Fairview avenue from Flower to Bristol street, and the construction firm of Steele Finley will pave the street immediately.

A water main is being installed on McFadden street between Main and Halladay streets. This thoroughfare also will be paved in the near future by Steele Finley.

JAP SUFFRAGISTS IN HAIR PULLING

TOKIO, May 23.—The advent of women in politics in Japan, one of the outward evidences of the determination by the Japanese people have more and more to do with the management of the government, has been accomplished not without its trials to the women who lead the way.

Even among the feminine speakers themselves there has been some sign of discord. Recently, at the Buddhist hall in Kanda Ward, Tokyo, Mrs. Y. Ogino, a speaker against the "tyrannical government of peers," became displeased with Mrs. M. Yamaguchi, a writer for the Osaka Labor Weekly, who was loud in her disagreements with the speaker of the evening. Descending from the platform where she had been speaking, Mrs. Ogino walked straight to the feminine heckler and proceeded to pull Mrs. Yamaguchi's hair.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 23.—Mrs. Amber Allis, plaintiff in a suit against her brother-in-law, Louis Allis, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Margery Morris, for $250,000 damages for alleged alienation of the affection of Gilbert Allis, her former husband, won her case when the jury brought in a verdict for $55,000 in her favor.

Merchant Dodges Death as Truck Goes Over Cliff

SAN RAFAEL, May 23.—Joseph C. Soldavini, a San Rafael merchant, narrowly escaped death when his automobile truck plunged seventy-five feet down Corte Madera hill, near Sausalito, turned over seven times and smashed to bits in the canyon below. Soldavini escaped uninjured except for a small scratch on his chin. He was en route to Sausalito from San Rafael and had started on the down grade of the hill when the big truck, in some unknown manner, suddenly swerved from the road and plunged over the cliff.

Russ Ask British Loan to Pay War Debts in England

LONDON, May 23.—Soviet Russia has agreed to repay pre-war debts to England if the English government will grant it a long-term loan for that purpose, the foreign office announced today.

The government reply was that the matter would be taken up in a sympathetic attitude, although it was impossible to guarantee that such a loan could be arranged.

Science Seeking New Life Elixir In Tea Leaves

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23.—Science is on the trail that leads through the lowly tea leaf in search of a new vitamin believed to prolong life, and searching through tons of the stuff of life, two of a new substance, thought to increase animal fertility, Prof. H. M. Evans of the University of California announced.

It is said the new vitamin found in tea, named "bios," is 200 times richer in life-giving qualities than the yeast vitamin.

House of Lords Pathetic Holds Habitual Critic

LONDON, May 23.—The house of lords as at present constituted under the labor government wants some pep put into it, according to the earl of Birkenhead.

Birkenhead thinks the aspect presented by members of the government is simply pathetic, and told the guests at a recent banquet here that if it did not wake up there would soon be no pleasure in him going there and attacking them.

EVENING SALUTATION

Now the bright morning star, day's harbinger,
Comes dancing from the East, and leads with her
The flowery May, who from her green lap throws
The yellow cowslip, and the pale primrose.
Hail, bounteous May, that dost inspire
Mirth, and youth, and warm desire!
Woods and groves are of thy blessing;
Hill and dale doth boast thy blessing.
Thus we salute thee with our early song,
And welcome thee, and wish thee long!
—John Milton.

WATCH LEMON IMPORTERS

The visit in this county yesterday of a representative of the Federal Tariff commission should serve as a warning to citrus growers, bean growers and other growers of Orange county. It is an indication of the fact that eternal vigilance is the price of tariff protection, pointing to the need of consideration of the tariff as an issue in the coming campaign.

Some months ago it was learned that lemon importers of New York believed that they could enter a wedge in the lemon tariff, and at that time preparations were made in California to watch the importers and meet any move they might make. The representative of the Tariff commission who was here yesterday gave the information that no definite proposal is before the commission for the reduction of the tariff on lemons, but, knowing the situation, it was found advisable to secure data concerning the industry so that the commission would have facts and figures on hand should the matter be brought officially before the commission.

Should the strength of the California representation at Washington be weakened, and more especially should Republican congressmen from lemon growing districts be replaced with congressmen of the opposite political faith, the importers, we believe, will quickly move up their gatling guns and open up on the citrus tariffs.

The growers welcome the visit of the representative of the tariff commission. Easterners unfamiliar with citrus growing have a hard time understanding the expenses that are necessary in successful citrus growing. The investigation will give the commission a better understanding of the problems of the grower.

The data, to be sure, will be furnished gladly and conscientiously. The books of the packing-houses and growers are open. Looking to the future, the duty that is upon the grower politically is to do his part in seeing that the administration at Washington remains Republican.

A summer resort is a place where the mosquitos start in about dark, just when the flies quit work. —Tulsa Tribune.

THE SITUATION IMPROVING

Day by day, the situation in Southern California in relation to the control of the foot and mouth disease is improving. The quarantine thrown around the infected districts by the federal authorities with the full co-operation of state and county authorities is proving effective.

Orange county has had a touch of the epidemic at a point near the county line to the west. Two herds were slaughtered and the federal veterinarians and inspectors have disinfected the premises. These two herds were in adjoining pastures. The second herd unquestionably took the disease from the first. There the infection appears to have been stopped. Each day that passes without a new infection in the neighborhood increases the likelihood of safety in increasing proportion. If there is to be a new case, it is much more likely to appear during the first five days than it is during the next five days. When ten days have elapsed after disinfection has been completed, the inspectors feel that most of the danger has passed, and each day thereafter increases the margin of safety tremendously. After the end of the twenty-first day, the danger is considered as past.

The public and the authorities in this county, have given their co-operation cheerfully. This same spirit of co-operation, together with a continuation of the intelligent and experienced leadership in charge of the fight, is to be found all over Southern California now. And that is one of the reasons why we confidently predict an early elimination of the foot and mouth disease in this end of the state.

GRAND DUKE NICHOLAS AGAIN

The Russian Soviet government, according to Russian refugees in France, is on the verge of a fall. With Lenin gone and Trotsky's power weakened, and a triumvirate consisting of Stalin, Rykoff and Kameneff trying to rule, it would take but a slight push, they say, to overthrow it.

With that little chore done, the exiles hope to see the return of the old ruling class. The hopes of both monarchists and liberals are said to unite on Grand Duke Nicholas, second cousin of the late czar and commander-in-chief of the Russian armies early in the World War.

There is, indeed, a name to conjure with. Though little has been heard of Grand Duke Nicholas in the last few years, his name still spells power. He is known the world over as a strong man and an honest one. He is highly respected in this country. Millions of Russians might possibly throng to his banner, once it was raised. His old troops might be for him, and the Russian people, with all their democracy, have always loved a master.

But the Soviet government is not gone yet. It has already long outlasted early predictions, and may have an unsuspected amount of vitality left in it.

MUSIC IN AMERICA

The National Federation of Music Clubs of America has adopted for its slogan "A Musical America," and it announces that its ideal is much closer to realization than we know. Today America is singing, playing, composing and appreciating good music as never before.

New York is now said to be the musical center of the world, offering as fine opportunities for study as any Old World center, and attracting to it music students and artists from many other countries.

More encouraging than that fact, to patriotic music-lovers, is the appreciation and enjoyment of music to be found all through the United States, in the small cities as well as the large ones. The musical education given public school children today is far ahead of that of only a generation ago. Music memory contests and contests in skillful instrumental performance are found in many states and cities. High school glee clubs, orchestras and bands are reaching a wider range of children than ever before had access to so much good music. And those who cannot learn to perform are learning to enjoy and appreciate.

Hoover and Alaskan Fisheries

San Francisco Chronicle

When one sees personal abuse of a public official substituted for reasons against some policy which that official supports, he may be morally certain that those who are guilty of such conduct really desire to continue some form of rascality which the policy concerned, if adopted, would prevent. This is intended to apply to those persons who are attacking Secretary of Commerce Hoover for supporting a bill for the conservation of the Alaskan fisheries.

About a year ago, more or less, a few scientists on this Coast, who are thoroughly familiar with sea life in the Alaskan waters and who stand before the world as among its foremost scientists of marine life, demonstrated before the Commonwealth Club that the Alaskan fisheries were doomed unless action was taken for very strict regulation. The facts as they are can be found in the printed transactions of that club.

As a result of a scientific movement of which that demonstration was an incident, there is pending in Congress a bill which has been unanimously approved by full committees of Senate and House, as well as by the Department of Commerce, for strict regulation of fisheries and control by license.

The primary object of the bill is to conserve the fishes. Incidentally, it regulates the fishermen and prevents monopolies and destructive practices. Obviously there are some who are hurt. Presumably there are others who hope for profit by trying to injure a Republican official.

Turning Over a New Leaf

San Francisco Chronicle

An election in most of the Central American countries has been nothing more nor less than another name for a revolution. Honduras has from time to time engaged in the prevailing pastime of voting for a President and when that formality was over it has thrown the ballots in the scrap heap and substituted bayonets and bullets. The President's office was never considered secure and the government of the country was really no government at all.

Honduras has been doing politics with guns for several months and there seemed to be no end to the strife until Uncle Sam offered to show the Central Americans the better way. Now all the warring factions have signed a treaty of peace, which provides for the holding of an election and a pledge to abide by it. There is to be no shooting up of the successful candidate and no revolution.

A real-honest-to-goodness election will be a new experience for these well-meaning but excitable people. After they have had one or two they may get to like them. They may not be so thrilling as the periodical revolution, but they are much safer for the population.

Slackers Among Voters

Long Beach Press

Elections are controlled by just about one-half of the total number of citizens who are qualified to vote. In other words, in national elections, even in Presidential years, only about 50 per cent of the eligible vote is cast. In 1920, when the vote for President was the greatest ever cast, the grand total was almost 27,000,000. And yet more than 25,000,000 persons, of age, and having qualifications to vote, did not vote at all!

This is a menace that should startle the whole country. Along this line reform is needed more than in any direction affecting the election of government officials and the determining of government policies. This is a shirking and evasion of duty which is alarming. The most startling phase of it is that the habitual non-voter usually is a responsible, high-class citizen in all other respects except as to voting.

There should be agitation and eventually it may be necessary to have legislation to compel those eligible, to vote, or else disfranchise them, temporarily or permanently if they persist in absenting themselves from the polls. Conscription of voters is an ugly thought. But the menace of non-voting is an ugly situation.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

WHICH WAS THE HAPPIER
I passed an express dray the other day and was admiring the sturdy horses when I happened to look at the driver. He was an old man with white whiskers, apparently seventy or more years of age, but his vigorous commands to his horses betokened plenty of physical strength. He looked wiry and strong. It was rather a cold day, and as I looked at his dray load of broom handles and realized that he would likely have to unload them I began to feel just a bit sorry for him.

While musing thus, I turned to my left, and saw another old, well-dressed gentleman of about the same age, but about fifty pounds overweight, hobbling along on a cane on his way into a fire hall to have a friendly game of checkers with the firemen. His gait gave evidence of stiffened limbs, even if they were not indeed painful. As I looked back at my friend the teamster and heard his sturdy "whoa" again, somehow or other I did not feel quite so sorry for them.

There he was driving a team in truth, but able to take his part in the world, physically at least. This meant a real enjoyment of meals, a good digestion, and refreshing sleep. I could not picture the more prosperous individual as really getting as much out of life as he. I don't believe any of us are anxious to see old people forced to work for their living.

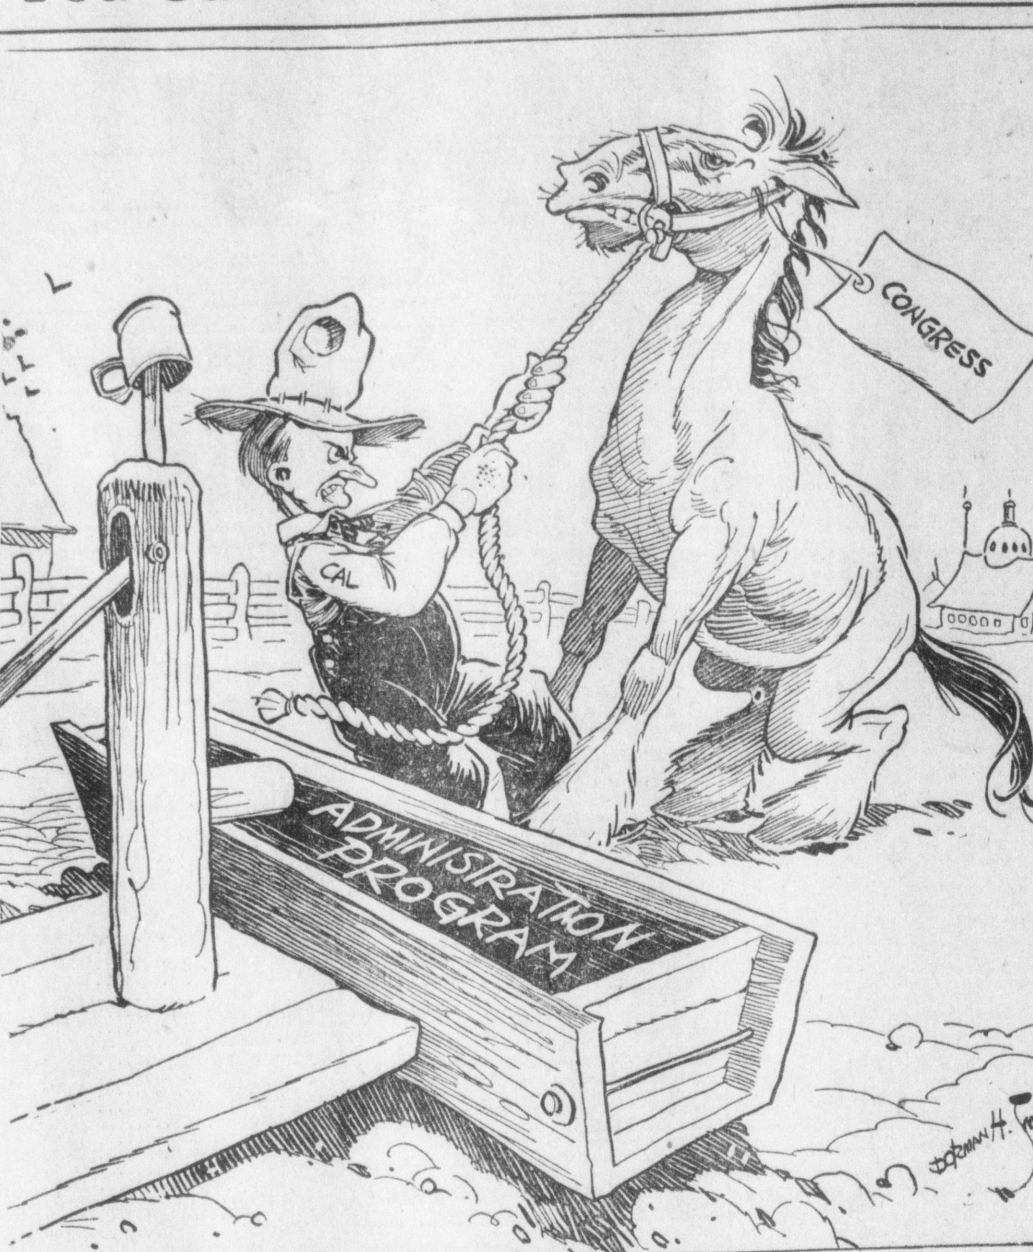

It "gets" you a little to see some of these aged fellows trying to wield a shovel or broom on the city street. But what I have in mind is that as the folks grow older, the children, themselves adults, naturally try to lessen the labor of the old parents. Many a woman and man also have been carried away from their loved humble cottage and given a place of honor in the home of the son and daughter, and told to do nothing but rest.

And the result?
Well, they miss their old neighbors, the familiar faces, the little odd jobs of necessity and often of charity. The mental processes begin to slow up, and soon there follows the lagging of all the physical activities.

With no work to do, but good food provided, there is often an increase in weight, which is a liability as age comes on.

Then follows some digestive disturbances, the liver and intestine becoming sluggish, with lack of all desire to move about. Following this comes the stiffened joints, the hardening of the walls of the blood vessels, and old age is upon them. Don't let yourself grow old in this manner, find something to do mentally and physically every day. Years may come and go, but you'll go on getting something out of them until the end.

The Quality of Mercy

San Francisco Journal

Defectiveness in American administration of criminal law, inadequacy of the law and lax enforcement of law have for at least half a century been common charges against the courts, the judges and the lawyers of the United States. The chorus of condemnation is universal and unceasing. It comes from Americans and foreigners, from the legal fraternity and from the lay folk. Now Secretary Hughes of the Department of State, himself a former member of the Supreme Court of the United States and thus an authority as to these problems, criticizes America's criminal processes as too dilatory, its juries as too indulgent and its judges as too lenient.

Indulgence on the part of jurors and leniency from courts—the reference to these by Mr. Hughes raises a problem in the administration of justice. How far may man-made law justly go in using the principle expressed by the saying, "To err is human, to forgive, divine"? Shakespeare affirmed that "the quality of mercy is not strained. . . . It blesseth him that gives and him that takes. Earthly power doth then show likest God's when mercy seasons justice." Though justice be thy plea, consider this: That in the course of justice none of us should see salvation.

But this, however, true, is purely poetic truth. The law deals with stubborn facts, with evildoers, with criminal acts. How, if at all, are justice and mercy to meet and walk together? Can mercy be shown to the offender, and society still be protected and the purposes of justice fulfilled?

The Journal thinks that the answer must be in the affirmative. Its ground for so thinking is the divinity within every man. Justice can appeal to the divine element in humanity. Juries and judges, while sworn to render justice and protect society, are justified in considering extenuating circumstances, when these exist, and in this way showing mercy in the administration of justice. The legal authorities should hold the scales with firm and even hand, regardless of the rights of the people, but considerate also of the needs of the criminal. When we remember that it is increasingly recognized that not mere punishment of crime, but also reform of the criminal should be the aim of justice, we acquire a standard of measurement for the extent to which justice may be qualified with mercy.

Worth While Verse

"THE YEAR HATH PUT HIS MANTLE BY"

The year hath put his mantle by
Of snow, and icy wind, and rain;
And hath bedecked himself again
In sunshine brightness blithe-somely.
There is no beast, or bird to fly,
But in his jargon crieth plain:
"The year hath put his mantle by
Of snow, and icy wind, and rain."

And all the waters 'neath the sky,
That dumb or dark so long have lain,
Their springtime livery wear again
Of silver drops and jewelry.

The year hath put his mantle by
Of snow, and icy wind, and rain.

Time to Smile

AN EARLY RISER

A visitor in a mountain village noticed that one citizen was always up very early but never did any work. So he questioned the man's wife.

"Why does your husband rise so early?"
"Oh, he wants an early breakfast."
"But he doesn't do anything. Why must he have such an early breakfast?"

"To smoke after."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

An O-Pun Letter to Cressy

By Lord Helpim

Hello Cressy!

I red your dope today in the Regi-Stir. It's hot stuff, but you haven't anything on me when it comes to the wanderlust.

I have footed it many a time but never got to the foot of my class, nor have I been to Florida or the other torrid territory of His Satanic Majesty. Still I have traveled a bit and once got as far as Watts, and I walked. Yes, the Pacific Electric goes thru it but that is about the only thing that does go thru it. Watt's the use.

However, I will further admit that I changed inadvertently, on a time, to wander into Santa Barbara where I met other millionaires—well they were, you could distinguish them by their shabby attire and serious demeanor. Likewise they were harmless. More over they had become acclimated and looked almost human, in fact they don't deny it. So it has come to pass that they have become a real Santa Barbarous kind of people, you know, in other words they are half brothers to Santa Barbarians but they don't realize it.

Like the wild man of Borneo they have not yet learned to smile and wouldn't if they could. The fact is they think (well, they do at times) that the thoroughfares were made for their particular use and benefit, and that all others are usurpers and interlopers.

The other day I was reading in the Literary Digest about one of these poor millionaires who found his automobile gone when he went NiffleMReg'sBfdaoafqdaThyandy to his garage for it. He, however, tracked the thief—a son of Ham—and had him up before the court.

"When you went into this man's garage," sternly queried the judge, "and took his car out without his knowledge and consent, what motive did you have?"

"Dunno, sah," replied the culprit, "less it was a auto-motive."

"Ah! ha!" continued the judge, "at whose suggestion?"

"Dat's jest it, Jedge, it was a auto-suggestion. You see dis heah man advertised Fords for hire without drivers so I loved dey was automatic."

"That," replied His Honor, "is what I call an auto-graft, ten days, that auto give you time in which to write your autobiography, 'Step On It.'"

Santa Barbara is an ice town and the stranger who is not of the aristocracy meets with a cool reception. At this place is a very good bathing beach where the summer girls off do congregate.
